Much Serious Work Done At Big 3 Meet

Announcement Is Made To Newsmen

Statement Says: 'The Work Of The Conference Is Going Ahead And Much Serious Business Has Been Done'

By Daniel De Luce

POTSDAM, July 21.—(AP)—The Big Three victory conference reached the end of its first week tonight and American officials expressed satisfaction with progress already made in problems ranging from the inter-Allied rehabilitation of Europe to the destruction of Japanese resistance.

President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin held their fifth, three-hour meeting today and an announcement from the American compound said: "The work of the conference is going ahead and much serious business has been done."

Enemy Opposition Is Totally Lacking

Bombardment Directed At Radio, Radar And Other Military Installations; Planes Burn More Cities

GUAM, Sunday, July 23.—(AP)—Light units of the U. S. Third Fleet bombarded Nojima cape 55 miles south of Tokyo on the night of July 18-19 without encountering enemy opposition of any sort, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

"This force patrolled the eastern entrance of Sagami gulf but found no enemy shipping," Nimitz said in a communique.

"After the bombardment, which was directed at radio, radar and other military installations, our ships retired without incident."

This apparently was a coordinated operation with the shelling of enemy installations near Tokyo the same night by heavy units of the fleet.

INDUSTRIAL AREAS WELL BURNED OUT

GUAM, Sunday, July 22.—(AP)—American fighter pilots returning from roof-top sweeps over Japanese cities reported today previous Superfort raids had left vital industrial areas "well burned out."

Tokyo radio unwittingly seconded the Yank reports with the statement that Japan's stock of scrap iron, badly needed for war production, had "increased considerably in the war-damaged areas and we have been able to get all the scrap iron we want and need."

Mustang fighters hit the Nagoya-[illegible] in two attacks by groups of 80 and [illegible] Osaka area of Honshu Island Friday in two attacks by groups of 80 and [illegible] planes. The pilots noted especially the Superfort destruction at the factory towns of Okazaki and Kamazaki.

U. S. army and navy reports yesterday of strikes at Japan dealt entirely with the air war, making no mention of the whereabouts of American and British warships which bombarded Nipponese coastal industrial areas last week.

Far East air force Mustang fighter-bombers returned to the port of Kagoshima on Kyushu Island, American headquarters reported yesterday, increasing the damage done previously to rail facilities at that southern Japanese city.

Reassessment of Jap War Duration Awaits Decisions In Potsdam

Interpretation By
Kirke L. Simpson
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Attention remained closely focused on the Churchill-Stalin-Truman conversations in Potsdam at the week end despite provokingly meagre official word from the Big Three conference as to the nature or progress of its deliberations.

Such intimations as did reach the press, however, only served to heighten expectation on this side of the Atlantic that decisions affecting the duration of the war with Japan would be reached.

The titanic combined Anglo-American sea-air attack on Japan that continued unabated throughout the week heightened that expectation. City after city, both coastal and interior, in Japan was withered by bomb blasts or incendiaries, and by naval guns. There was no effective reaction by the foe of any sort except for a hornet's nest of antiaircraft fire stirred up by carrier planes which located and attacked hide-out Japanese warcraft at the mouth of Tokyo bay.

Enemy warships and lurking there inactive to conceal their presence at the main Japan naval base in that area, Yokosuka, through repeated air raids on Tokyo and Yokohama. They ignored even the booming of Allied naval guns close off shore on the opposite side of the entrance to Tokyo bay. Only the fact that they were spotted from the air and attack touched off their ack-ack batteries at last.

The essential fact of the week, outside of what undisclosed understandings may have begun to take shape in Big Three discussions, was that for a week or more American and British warcraft of all categories including the most modern and powerful battleships afloat roamed up and down [illegible]

SOUTH INDUSTRY CLIMB EXPECTED

Think Freight Rate Change Will Decentralize Big Industry

MOBILE, Ala., July 21.—(AP)—Nine southern governors concluded today after three days of discussions that the recent interstate commerce commission freight rate equalization order will result in a greater decentralization of big industry and stimulate development of small, locally financed industrial plants in the south and west.

The chief executives attending the Southern Governors' conference were unanimous in saying they did not seek a wholesale transfer of northern and eastern industrial plants to this area, and did not expect it.

They predicted that a large share of the postwar expansions would be built in southern and western states and said they already had received "very definite indications" of this trend.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—A possible $5,000,000,000 financial aid program for Russia was counted up in Congress today as one of President Truman's most potent talking points for Soviet cooperation on international problems under discussion at the Big Three meeting.

The president is reported to have let it become known, before he left here for the Potsdam meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, he intends to see that the United States gets something in return for financial help it extends.

4,306 JAPANESE KILLED ON BORNEO

MANILA, Sunday, July 22.—(AP)—Enemy dead counted in all Borneo operations now total 4,306, with 411 captured, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today, as Australian troops continued mopping-up operations in recently captured territory around the Sambodja oil fields.

Allied casualties, principally Australians, for the Borneo operations which include Tarakan and the Brunei bay sector as well as the southeast Borneo area of Balikpapan, now total 386 killed, 12 missing and 1,351 wounded, MacArthur's communique said. The ratio of Japanese dead to Allied dead thus was more than 11 to 1.

While describing no new ground action on the island MacArthur said U. S. army, 13th air force and royal Australian air force planes were continuing to bomb and strafe enemy rear areas, communications lines and fuel dumps.

It was reported at headquarters here that Dutch Colonial troops in the mopping-up operations had thrust a mile and a half north of Sambodja and occupied the outlying village of Bembadja.

It was disclosed also that the Sepinggang airfield near Balikpapan had been extended to 7,000 feet.

BRITAIN USING BIG FLEET IN JAP WAR

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—The London Daily Telegraph in a dispatch from Washington today quoted a British naval spokesman as saying that "practically the entire British battle fleet had been thrown into the war against Japan."

The admiralty declined to comment on the report, which apparently was based on an announcement by the British Information Service. This said the 35,000-ton battleships, the Howe, King George V, and the Duke of York; five aircraft carriers, five cruisers and 12 destroyers were operating in the Pacific.

In addition the British Information Service announcement said the British East Indies fleet now included the battleships Queen Elizabeth, the Valiant and the Richelieu (French); the battle cruiser Renown; four escort carriers, six cruisers and 14 destroyers.

JAPAN TOLD ONLY WAY IS UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—This government officially told the Japanese today that unconditional surrender offers "the only way by which you can make possible the salvation of Japan."

Broadcasting as "an official spokesman of the United States government" and addressing his words directly to "Japanese leaders," Capt. E. C. Zacharias, U.S.N., said:

"The leaders of Japan have been entrusted with the salvation and not the destruction of Japan. . . the Japanese leaders have two alternatives. One is the virtual destruction of Japan followed by a dictated peace. The other is unconditional surrender with its attendant benefits as laid down by the Atlantic charter."

The office of war information, in releasing the text of Captain Zacharias' speech, described him as "an official spokesman" for the government, apparently giving his remarks the full weight of the administration.

The Atlantic Charter pledges adherents not to seek territorial aggrandizement, to sponsor no territorial changes unless approved by affected peoples, to permit peoples to choose their own form of government, to permit access by victor and vanquished alike to trade and raw materials, to economic collaboration among all nations, to a peace of safety and freedom from fear, to freedom of the seas and to work for abandonment of the use of force by nations.

The broadcast, the twelfth of "a very special series," as OWI described it, was the first to be distributed to the press.

An OWI official insisted, however, that this had no particular significance.

"We have had many inquiries and decided to issue a general press release," he said.

Until yesterday the outgoing cabinet ministers themselves were dependent upon rumors for information as to their status.

Franco administered the oath of office to the new cabinet today and the Falangist newspaper Arriba declared editorially that the government would continue the Falangist ideal.

Meanwhile Monarchists of all shades, from ardent traditionalists to the most liberal followers of the exiled Prince Juan, who want free elections with the participation of all parties under the monarchy, expressed belief that the new cabinet represented "collaborationist groups."

The foreign radio informed Spaniards that Juan had no intention of accepting a ready-made regime wherein a thinly-camouflaged Falange continued to operate.

Much Serious Work Done At Big 3 Meet

Announcement Is Made To Newsmen

Statement Says: 'The Work Of The Conference Is Going Ahead And Much Serious Business Has Been Done'

By Daniel De Luce

POTSDAM, July 21.—(AP)—The Big Three victory conference reached the end of its first week tonight and American officials expressed satisfaction with progress already made in problems ranging from the inter-Allied rehabilitation of Europe to the destruction of Japanese resistance.

President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin held their fifth, three-hour meeting today and an announcement from the American compound said: "The work of the conference is going ahead and much serious business has been done."

How long the meetings would continue and what agreements had been reached were questions left unanswered, but the brief American statement —the first interim report given by any of the three delegations — reflected President Truman's earnest wish to keep the world informed as much as possible of progress in this suburb of conquered Berlin.

The American delegation reported that the three leaders of the United States, Britain and Russia spent approximately 15 hours this week in direct discussions at the round-table.

They met formally each day, starting Tuesday, while their foreign secretaries — James F. Byrnes, Anthony Eden and Vyacheslav Molotov, began the daily spade work on Monday. Besides their full-dress meetings, the Big Three entertained among themselves with a series of luncheons and dinners where the international business of peace and war continually obtruded.

Churchill, Eden and Former Deputy Minister Clement Attlee and the highest military commanders of Britain slightly delayed the previous schedules today in order to witness a parade in the Tiergarten of the British seventh armored ("Desert Rats") division.

It was Churchill's second visit to the ruins of central Berlin. He made his first visit Monday and inspected Hitler's underground shelter at the Reichschancellery.

Today he was cheered by shabby, awed Berliners on the Kurfuestendamm when he stopped to open a new British Service club for the seventh armored men, who named it the "Winston Club" in his honor.

For the achievements of the "Desert Rats" since 1940, the prime minister's soldier heart was almost visibly overfilled with emotion. He declared their heroic march from El Alamein across Africa and Europe to Berlin was "unsurpassed in all the story of war so far as my reading of history leads me to believe."

"Here in Berlin," he said at the club opening, "I find you established in this great center from which, as from a volcano, fire and smoke and poison fumes have erupted all over Europe twice in our generation."

"Dear Desert Rats," he said, "may your glory ever shine, may your laurels never fade, may the memory of this glorious pilgrimage of war which you have made from El Alamein via the Baltic never die."

After Churchill took the parade salute from a half-track on the Charlottenburger Chaussee with starred and famous British commanders, Field Marshal Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, at the prime minister's request, ordered a holiday for the British fighting men in Berlin who had helped to save the British empire.

The German cheers at the club were an unscheduled event for Churchill. A crowd of more than 200, mostly women and children, gathered outside British military lines around the club, formerly known as the "Kabaret Der Komiker," and when he drove up there were cries of greeting. He merely stared at them.

But on leaving in a car with Montgomery, the British prime minister acknowledged the German cheers by raising his fingers in the V-for-Victory sign.

People's Political Council Asks Him To Remain In China

KUMMING, China, July 20.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Claire Lee Chennault listened today to pleas from the national people's political council at Chungking that he remain in China, but said he could not withdraw his resignation as commander of the U. S. 14th air force.

"The same situation still exists that caused me to submit my resignation," the former leader of the Flying Tigers told Chinese correspondents. "I don't see how I can change my decision at this time."

Chennault announced his resignation July 14, after a disclosure that the American air effort in China was to be reorganized under the overall command of Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer.

The Chinese correspondents obtained a press conference with Chennault today after requests arrived from the Shungking national people's political council and its provincial counterpart in Yunan province asking him to stay in China.

"I know you will realize that the question of staying on is not one of personal desire—it is a question of being useful in this war," Chennault asserted.

The matter of placing T. B. cases in Domiciliary care reminds me of playing a game of checkers. Last week we had a few of them in three of our (probably less important) hotels.

The state provides no place for these advanced cases.

Your two state institutions, especially Dibert, will keep these cases until they appear hopeless, then they are turned out to shift for themselves at the time they are in the most communicable stage.

This is done because of lack of beds to make way for the more hopeful cases.

In the mean while your Department of Public Welfare have exhausted their supply of boarding houses and similar places where they can place them, and at times, they must rely on hotels temporarily to get a roof over their head until better care can be provided for a less harmful public exposure. U-BOATS SINK 11 MORE JAP SHIPS

Two Minesweepers And Two Patrol Escort Vessels Included

NEW HAUL INCREASES TO 1,174 LIST SUNK BY SUBS

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Because targets are getting scarcer all the time, the navy had to wait for almost three weeks to announce today the latest toll taken by U. S. submarines; 11 more Japanese ships.

Included in this bag were four small combatant craft, two of them minesweepers and two patrol escort vessels. There was one large cargo transport and the rest were small and medium transports, merchant vessels and freighters.

The new haul raised to 1,174 the total of Japanese ships of all types announced as sunk by U. S. submarines. Of these 144 were combatant ships and 1,030 were non-combatants.

The submarine fleet, which now numbers nearly 250 craft, has been a prime factor in choking Japan's water-borne supply lines. It has been officially credited by Secretary Forrestal with "the death of Japan as a maritime power."

Despite the growing size of the submersible fleet and the constantly expanding area of operations, the last major bag of enemy combat ships was announced March 30. Then a large carrier and two destroyers were reported sunk. Destruction of two more destroyers has been announced since that date.

Estimates made about the first of the year credited the submarine fleet with destroying 3,500,000 tons of enemy merchant shipping, about half of the tonnage Japan is believed to have had available at the start of the war. Sinkings announced since then, totalling 240 ships of all types, have pushed the total at least beyond 4,000,000 tons.

SENATE ADOPTS BIG FOOD PLAN

Shouts Approval Of Membership In United Nations Group

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The Senate shouted approval for United States membership in the United Nations food organization today, thus forging another bond of international cooperation before it takes up the United Nations charter next week.

During an hour and a half of debate, Senators Revercomb, Republican, West Virginia, Willis, Republican, Indiana, Bushfield, Republican, South Dakota, and others expressed some apprehension as to how far this country was committing itself.

But when the resolution for membership was put to a vote there was no request for a roll call and no "nays" were audible after a chorus of "ayes."

The resolution commits this country to contribute $625,000 to the first year's operations of the organization which grew from the international food conference held at Hot Springs, Va., in 1943.

It authorizes a contribution of up to $1,250,000 annually thereafter.

Twenty-three other nations, including the United Kingdom and China, already have accepted membership.

The organization's purpose is described as studying ways to improve world nutrition. Claude R. Wickard, then secretary of agriculture, testified before the foreign relations committee that the basic aim would be "to find ways of increasing the consumption of food and other agricultural products by methods that would benefit producers equally with customers."

Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, reported the membership resolution for the committee and assumed the job of steering it to passage. Senate Democrats sat back and left the whole discussion to the Republicans.

MONEY AID MAY BRING RUSSIA IN

Possible Huge Financial Program Talking Point For Truman

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—A possible $5,300,000,000 financial aid program for Russia was counted up in Congress today as one of President Truman's most potent talking points for Soviet cooperation on international problems under discussion at the Big Three meeting.

The president is reported to have let it become known before he left here for the Potsdam meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin he intends to see that the United States gets something in return for financial help it extends.

With $1,00,000,000 in lend-lease already earmarked for the Russians, Congress added another potential $4,000,000,000 to the pot this week by passage of the Bretton Woods monetary legislation and by agreeing to increase the Export-Import Bank's lending authority by $2,800,000,000.

Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, reportedly told Senators that $1,000,000,000 of the latter amount will be used for a direct loan to Russia. The Soviets would be expected to spend it in this country for machinery and goods to rebuild their war-damaged industries.

Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, told a reporter it is the general understanding that Russia will draw $300,000,000 or more a year for three years from the $8,800,000,000 currency stabilization fund to be set up under the Bretton Woods agreements.

Taft added that while this was intended to stabilize currencies, he thought the Russians might be permitted to use the money for some other purposes.

He estimated that when the $9,100,000,000 International Bank is established, Russia reasonably could be expected to obtain—over the course of several years—loans for reconstruction

JAPAN TOLD ONLY WAY IS UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—This government officially told the Japanese today that unconditional surrender offers the "only way by which you can make possible the salvation of Japan."

Broadcasting as "an official spokesman of the United States government," and addressing his words directly to "Japanese leaders," Capt. E. C. Zacharias, U.S.N., said:

Reassessment of Jap War Duration Awaits Decisions In Potsdam

Interpretation By

Kirke L. Simpson

(Associated Press War Analyst)

Attention remained closely focused on the Churchill-Stalin-Truman conversations in Potsdam at the week-end despite provokingly meagre official word from the Big Three conference as to the nature or progress of its deliberations.

Such intimations as did reach the press, however, only served to heighten expectation on this side of the Atlantic that decisions affecting the duration of the war with Japan would be reached.

The titanic combined Anglo-American sea-air attack on Japan that continued unabatted throughout the week heightened that expectation. City after city, both coastal and interior, in Japan was withered by bomb blasts or incendiaries, and by naval guns. There was no effective reaction by the foe of any sort except for a hornet's nest of antiaircraft fire stirred up by carrier planes which located and attacked hide-out Japanese warcraft at the mouth of Tokyo bay.

Enemy warships had lain there inactive to conceal their presence at the main Japan naval base in that area, Yokosuka, through repeated air raids on Tokyo and Yokohama. They ignored even the booming of Allied naval guns close off shore on the opposite side of the entrance to Tokyo bay. Only the fact that they were spotted from air and attack touched off their ack-ack batteries at last.

The essential fact of the week, outside of what undisclosed understandings may have begun to take shape in Big Three discussions, was that for a week or more American and British warcraft of all categories including the most modern and powerful battleships afloat, roamed up and down the Japanese Pacific coast unchallenged by sea or air. Nowhere did even coastal batteries open up although battleships, cruisers and lighter craft more than once were in easy range of even shore-mounted field guns. Only the vast combined carried fleets remained far out at sea to launch their air flotillas and receive them again to be fueled and armed for further attacks.

There is no parallel in history for such bold inshore naval operations against a maritime power. Prior to the naval battles of the Philippine sea

4 POWERS AGREE ON WAR TRIALS

Will Be Held Collectively For Major Criminals In Nuernberg

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—The four major Allied powers apparenlty have agreed, at least tentatively, to hold a collective trial of major Nazi war criminals in Nuernberg, pageant place of aggression in Hitler's years of power.

Internationally recognized legal authorities have flown to the ancient and picturesque cathedral city in Bavaria, 124 miles from Berlin, to examine the courtroom and other facilities which will be essential for a trial unparalleled in history.

The American delegation was led by Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor.

The group will return to London to resume plans for the trial itself, before which such Nazi leaders as Hermann Goering, Rudolf Hess and Joachim Ribbentrop will be hailed. The plans, according to responsible American sources, are nearing completion.

The exact location of the court has not been divulged. Nuernberg, however, is the site of Europe's biggest stadium. With indications that the number of defendants to be tried simultaneously will range from 35 to 300, the possibility that it may be held in the stadium itself cannot be eliminated.

Facilities for press correspondents promises to be a major problem in itself, with the probability that there will be requests for well over 1,000 press seats from newspapers and agencies all over the world. Justice Jackson has gone on record in favor of full coverage to provide a historical document on the evils of aggression.

CHILD FATALLY SHOT

BATON ROUGE, La., July 21.—(AP)—Funeral services will be held today for Lucile Mickey Martin, six-year-old daughter of Mrs. Florence S. Martin of Route 1, Jackson, who died Thursday of gunshot wounds. The child was playing in the yard with a shotgun when it accidentally discharged.

Enemy Opposition Is Totally Lacking

Bombardment Directed At Radio, Radar And Other Military Installations; Planes Burn More Cities

GUAM, Sunday, July 23.—(AP)—Light units of the U. S. Third Fleet bombarded Nojima cape 55 miles south of Tokyo on the night of July 18-19 without encountering enemy opposition of any sort, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

"This force patrolled the eastern entrance of Sagami gulf but found no enemy shipping," Nimitz said in a communique.

"After the bombardment, which was directed at radio, radar and other military installations, our ships retired without incident."

This apparently was a coordinated operation with the shelling of enemy installations near Tokyo the same night by heavy units of the fleet.

INDUSTRIAL AREAS WELL BURNED OUT

GUAM, Sunday, July 22.—(AP)—American fighter pilots returning from roof-top sweeps over Japanese cities reported today previous Superfort raids had left vital industrial areas "well burned out."

Tokyo radio unwittingly seconded the Yank reports with the statement that Japan's stock of scrap iron, badly needed for war production, had "increased considerably in the war-damaged areas and we have been able to get all the scrap iron we want and need."

Mustang fighters hit the Nagoya-in two attacks by groups of 80 and Osaka area of Honshu Island Friday in two attacks by groups of 80 and 94 planes. The pilots noted especially the Superfort destruction at the factory towns of Okazaki and Kamazaki.

U. S. army and navy reports yesterday of strikes at Japan dealt entirely with the air war, making no mention of the whereabouts of American and British warships which bombarded Nipponese coastal industrial areas last week.

Far East air force Mustang fighter-bombers returned to the port of Kagoshima on Kyushu Island, American headquarters reported yesterday, increasing the damage done previously to rail facilities at that southern Japanese city.

The Mustangs bombed and strafed railroad cars and locomotives blockaded at the entrances to four railroad tunnels hit in the former raid. Rayon mills and harbor docks were blasted at Kushikino and Mayakonojo, near Kagoshima.

More than 200 heavy, medium and attack bombers of the seventh air force, bombed and machinegunned five airfields around Shanghai Wednesday for the second consecutive day of heavy attacks on the main center of Japanese military activity in China.

Carrying the air war southward, bombers and fighters of the Fifth and 13th air forces and of the U. S. Seventh fleet wrecked Japanese shipping and railroad cars along the China and Indo-China coasts. A factory was bombed at Canton.

Formosa also received its daily pounding from U. S. medium bombers, 20 of them setting Matsuyama airfield installations afire and hitting railroad and storage facilities.

Reports yesterday from Borneo said Australian troops who recently captured the Sambodja oil field on the eastern side of the big petroleum producing island were consolidating their positions but there was little ground warfare.

SOUTH INDUSTRY CLIMB EXPECTED

Think Freight Rate Change Will Decentralize Big Industry

MOBILE, Ala., July 21.—(AP)—Nine southern governors concluded today after three days of discussions that the recent interstate commerce commission freight rate equalization order will result in a greater decentralization of big industry and stimulate development of small, locally financed industrial plants in the south and west.

The chief executives attending the Southern Governors' conference were unanimous in saying they did not seek a wholesale transfer of northern and eastern industrial plants to this area, and did not expect it.

They predicted that a large share of the postwar expansions would be built in southern and western states and said they already had received "very definite indications" of this trend.

Governor Chauncey Sparks of Alabama said industry had discovered it was greater economy to assemble finished products at divisional plants and distribute them locally that it was to complete the finished product at a central and distribute them from this point.

"The decentralization of industry is the next step in our national economy," Sparks said. "It will largely take the place of mass, and assembly line production.

"The south can not be helpful in this transition unless trade barriers and rate handicaps are removed. The order of the ICC speaks the early arrival of that day."

Preparing to adjourn its four-day meeting here, members of the conference voted to set up a permanent organization with a continuing personnel at its next meeting in New Orleans, December 7 and 8.

The governors adopted a resolution expressing their thanks to southern railroads for their announced intention to cooperate in making the class freight rate reductions effective at the earliest possible date.

Railroads affected by the I. C. C. order have asked the I. C. C. to postpone its effective date from August 30 of this year to April 1, 1946, but heads of several southern railroads have expressed belief that they could put the new tariffs into effect by next February 15. The southern governors said they did not oppose a "reasonable extension" up to 90 days

The I. C. C. order requires an increase of 10 per cent in class rates in official or northeastern territory. It also requires that class rates within southern, southwestern and western trunk line territories and between these and official territory be reduced 10 per cent.

This is what some of the other governors attending the conference said

DICTATED 'CRISIS' HANDLED BY FRANCO

MADRID, July 21.—(AP)—Seldom even under the degime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco has Spain seen a more dictated "crisis" than the one Franco managed with last night's changes in his cabinet.

Until yesterday the outgoing cabinet ministers themselves were dependent upon rumors for information as to their status.

Then each of them received a similar letter from Franco thanking him for services rendered and saying that for obvious reasons he "found it necessary to do without their services at present."

Franco administered the oath of office to the new cabinet today and the Falangist newspaper Arriba declared editorially that the government would continue the "Falangist ideal.

Meanwhile Monarchists of all shades, from ardent traditionalists to the most liberal followers of the exiled Prince Juan, who want free elections with the participation of all parties under the monarchy, expressed belief that the new cabinet represented "collaborationist groups."

The foreign radio informed Spaniards that Juan had no intention of accepting a ready-made regime where-in a thinly-camouflaged Falange continued to operate.

ORGANIZED GROUP TRAVEL IS BANNED

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The Office of Defense Transportation today banned organized group rail travel such as "all-expense tours," effective immediately.

It also prohibited the sale of railway tickets or space on trains to travel agencies. Such agencies will not be permitted to reserve, purchase or acquire any rail tickets or space.

ODT defined organized group travel as passenger train travel by any two or more persons traveling together in a group "when such travel has been arranged by a travel agency or by any other person, who for compensation has made arrangements in advance for obtaining by the persons in the group of meals, lodging or recreation incident to such travel."

The order, ODT said, "is designed travel which is unrelated to the war effort, in order that passenger train equipment may be made available for troop movements with the least possible interference with travel on regularly scheduled passenger trains by men and women on furlough and by civilians engaged in essential travel."

STORM REVERSES COURSE

NEW ORLEANS, July 21.—(AP)—A tricky tropical storm in the Gulf of Mexico, which for the past two days had threatened the western Louisiana and upper Texas coastlines, reversed its course today and veered toward the lower mid-Texas coast.

EAGER TO ADOPT POLE STOWAWAY

12-Year-Old Boy Who Fought With GI's Reaches New York

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—A 12-year-old Polish stowaway, whose GI pals smuggled him aboard a troop transport in Le Havre, waited hopefully today for his friends to cut legal red tape so he can leave the ship and rejoin them ashore.

The little Pole, Joseph Eugene Paremba, had to stay aboard the transport marine Panther after his "foster parents" of battery C, 38th field artillery, Second infantry division, filed ashore yesterday at Camp Shanks, nearby.

But he was not forgotten. Legal proceedings were reported in progress by army authorities, so that he could enter the states as the adopted son of Cpl. Leroy Ritchey, a former school teacher of Tulsa, Okla., and his wife.

Round-faced Joseph had three other offers of adoption, and the troops had collected more than $1,000 for him so that he would not be classified a pauper under immigration laws.

The men of battery C told officers at Camp Shanks they smuggled Joseph aboard ship in a duffle bag.

"He was too good to leave behind," they said.

The troop ship's skipper, Capt. James L. Walden of New York City, said he had discovered the boy's presence on the ship a day after it sailed. He quoted Joseph as saying:

"I knew I'd get caught, but the men convinced me I should go with them to America. I don't know what I want to do in America except go to school. I didn't realize how ignorant I was until I lived with Americans."

Troops said the boy had fought side by side with them for three and a half months after they liberated him in Germany where he had been sent after SS troopers killed his parents.

He lived in foxholes with them, carried ammunition and helped with various chores, they said.

GI from head to toe, Joseph was dressed in American uniform cut down by a tailor in battery C. He wore an ETO ribbon with a combat star which was earned, the battery insists—a sharpshooter's medal, for which he qualified on the range, and a good humor ice cream medal.

BUICK PLANNING LARGE EXPANSION

FLINT, Mich., July 21.—(AP)—Buick Division of General Motors Corporation announced plans for the largest peacetime expansion program in its history. It is designed to provide for a projected 40 per cent increase in employment opportunity and production capacity for more than 550,000 cars annually.

In announcing the program, Harlow H. Curtice, general manager of the Buick Division, said its first base, reconversion for passenger car production, rapidly is being effected. Engineering models of the new cars have been completed, he said, and now are ready for production.

The expenditure involved in the reconversion, modernization and expansion program was not disclosed. It is part of General Motors' over-all program for the expenditure of $500,000,000 in postwar rehabilitation and expansion.

WAR HERO GETS COZIEST CHAIR

Winner of Congressional Medal Returns To Home In Arkansas

LEPANTO, Ark., July 21.—(AP)—The coziest chair in the humble farm home of James Hendrix was turned over today to a fighting son, who went off to war a year ago and came back winner of America's highest military decoration.

"We want Jimmy to do nothing, just take it easy for the next 30 days," said the lean, proud father.

"I can use a bit of rest," laughed red-haired, 19-year-old S Sgt. Jimmy Hendrix, beginning to show the wear of the mad homefront whirl that accompanies a winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The sergeant's East Arkansas neighbors have decided to leave him alone with his parents and his stairstep 10 brothers and sisters until next Friday when Lepanto will stage a big formal homecoming.

The family had planned to barbecue a 50-pound shoat for the homecoming dinner today but the idea was spiked by the hero.

"Naw, let's not kill the little pig," Jimmy said, "that would be a shame."

The sergeant, honest and abashed, stepped off the train last night in Memphis and was smothered by the tearful kisses of his parents.

The 135-pound sharpshooter, who with a rifle mopped up two German 88-mm gun positions, then kissed each of his 10 brothers and sisters.

Then the welcoming delegation from Lepanto stepped up to shake the hand of the farm lad who, his mother says, learned his marksmanship at the age of five.

After the welcoming, they all returned in taxicabs to Lepanto. Young Hendrix plans to take things easy until the official homecoming celebration here next Friday.

"I hope Jimmy takes his discharge," said the father, lean, work-worn James Hendrix. "He would be a big help on the farm."

"Oh, I'd like to stay in the army maybe another 20 years," said Jimmy.

4 CRIPPLED AIRMEN PERMITTED TO FLY

TAMPA, Fla., July 21.—(AP)—The three airmen lay in Walter Reed hospital. Each had lost a leg in action.

Gen. Henry M. Arnold visited the hospital. He asked if there was anything he could do for them.

"Yes, Sir," they told the air forces chief in unison. "Let us fly again."

And today, along with another veteral who'd lost an arm, they are flying again at Drew Field here.

They are Capt. Kenneth C. Jewell of Cumberland, Md., Lt. Joseph M. Hannon of Boston and Lt. Wm. R. Kraham of Cooperstown, N. Y.

The airman with the missing arm is Lt. Reuben G. Bock of Bowler, Wis.

They are observation instructors at Drew.

It happened this way:

Some months after the request, they met the general again at Biltmore A. A. F. Hospital near Coral Gables. They talked to him. General Arnold realized they were very sincere.

He issued an order restoring them to flying status, and they became the first pilots to fly for the A. A. F. after losing limbs.

The radio compass was first used on aircraft July 8, 1920, on a flight of 95 miles from Norfolk, Va., to a battleship at sea.

GREETINGS SON! HI DAD!

NUNN-BUSH FIRM SHARING RETURNS

Point To Unbroken Record Of 520 Consecutive Pay Checks

MILWAUKEE, July 21.—(AP)—Henry L. Nunn and his Nunn-Bush Shoe Company employes—rather, his co-producers—have been planning for emergencies like unemployment, reconversion and recession for 10 years. Their record of 520 consecutive pay checks proves they know what they're doing.

It was in July, 1935, that Nunn decided to "share the production" with his employes, a unique system of plant operation in that, he explained, lined up management and labor as employes of the company. Each determines his return from participation of their joint product. Tonight the organization celebrates the 10th anniversary of its adventure in industrial management.

"It's not a philanthropy," Nunn insisted. "The employe gets what he earns."

Management receives the receipts from each 80 pairs of shoes sold and labor from the balance of 10 in 100 pairs.

The employe receives a weekly check based on his established skill and position, as an drawing account arrangement. If sales are up, his additional earnings are computed at the end of a four week period and are added to his pay check—with a portion set aside for times of stress.

"In the 10 years the plan has been in operation," Nunn said, "our basic employes never has worked less than a 52 hour week and that only infrequently. Our contract provides that they cannot be laid off.

"We never have had to discharge an employe above the apprentice rating. Our losses to other plans in the industry have been nil and we have had only an occasional loss to war industries. * * *

"When the demand for our product drops off, we will lower the price, and we will continue to lower the price until it is attractive to our customers. Our employes will continue to produce. Our factory will not be idle."

Of 900 employes, the 70 per cent who "share the production"—including all these above the apprentice class—averaged between $2,600 and $2,700 annually, which Nunn said was above the average for the industry.

TOWN PROCEEDINGS MUST BE PUBLISHED

Baton Rouge, La., July 21.—(AP)—The attorney general's department ruled in an opinion announced today that all proceedings of the mayor and board of aldermen of the town such as Scott, La., must be published in the official journal of such town.

L. P. Grimillion, special assistant attorney general, held in an opinion for Mayor G. J. LeBlanc of Scott that it "seemed reasonable to assume" that if there were no newspaper in the town, any qualified newspaper in the same parish might be selected as official printer.

He noted further that the law provides the printer must be an elector of the parish who operates a newspaper within the parish.

FEPC IS SOUGHT IN NEW ORLEANS

Local Handling Of Employment Problems Declared Preferable

NEW ORLEANS, July 21.—(AP)—Industrialists who employ both white and Negro labor here have thrown their support behind a movement to set up a voluntary committee on fair employment practices, with a view to setting up sound employment standards.

At a meeting at the Association of Commerce yesterday the employment group, by resolution, requested John W. Moore, chairman of the association's manufacturing committee, to name a committee to participate in a special conference to outline a plan.

Both Moore and the Rev. Vincent O'Connell, S. M., chairman of the labor-industry department of the Catholic Committee of the South, stated at the meeting that an editorial, appearing in the New Orleans Item on June 15, pointed the way for a constructive treatment of fair employment problems.

The Item suggested that commercial and industrial organizations, along with labor unions, appoint delegates to a conference on fair employment practices on a voluntary basis, in lieu of Federal controls, and that these delegates select a committee to draft a code of employment ethics for the future well being of the city and state.

The Item said that representatives of the Central Trades and Labor Council, the regional Committee of Industrial Organization and other interested unions and civic organizations would be invited to take part in the conference.

Moore said that the manufacturers' meeting was called as a result of a preliminary meeting called by Father O'Connell at request of Ralph Nicholson, president and publisher of the Item.

Nicholson said he was confident "that New Orleans can be as enterprising as any city in the United States in working toward improved conditions" affecting employment relations.

Moore told the meeting that one of the desired goals was "economic equality." He suggested that this might be attained through improved living conditions for Negroes, particularly housing.

The date for the conference session and names of committee members were to be announced later.

PROTEST NUMEROUS PAROLES IN TEXAS

HOUSTON, Tex., July 21.—(AP)—A "march" on Austin by sheriffs and police chiefs of Texas "to get the parole business straightened out" was proposed today by Sheriff Buck Hale of Wharton county.

Hale's proposal was reported as the Houston Post said Harris County and Texas law enforcement officials are protesting against state paroles and pardons which have in the last three years, the paper said, reduced a normal prison population from 7,000 to 3,000 inmates.

Hale said that for some time he has been investigating reports that ... the penitentiary ... [illegible]

"My information is that the ... asking and getting from $1 to $5 ... news as to status of an applicant's plea," the sheriff said.

In Houston, Inspector C. V. Kern of the police department estimated almost 80 per cent of all major crimes are being committed to parolees and former convicts. He said that in the 18 months from Jan. 1, 1944, to July 1, 1945, the police department made 2,283 arrests of convicts and parolees.

"Practically every major crime has a parolee or former convict mixed up in it," he said. "Many unsolved crimes, such as burglaries and safe crackings, appear to be the work of experts."

The Post said that the Texas Police Association and the Texas Sheriffs Association in Austin Thursday appointed a committee to study closer conferences in relation to a sharp wartime increase in crime.

MISSION UNUSUAL

F/O William Meredith recently received the air medal with one oak leaf cluster for distinguished service in the famous pseudo-civil airline which the air transport command operated between Scotland and Sweden before V-E day. This was one of the strangest military operations of the entire European war and carried pilots unarmed in civilian clothes over enemy areas to Sweden. The unit received a citation by General Eisenhower. Meredith graduated from Ouachita Parish High School in 1941, later graduated at Northeast Junior College and entered the air corps. He is now stationed in Naples, Italy. Picture shows the making of the award.

FARM PURCHASE LOANS REPORTED INCREASED

BATON ROUGE, La., July 21.—(AP)—Malcolm B. Alford, East Baton Rouge-Ascension parish supervisor of the Farm Security Administration, announced today that increased funds are now available for farm purchase loans under the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act.

He said returning war veterans who desire to buy family-type farms were the objects of a $25,000,000 congressional appropriation earmarked for veteran loans only, and that an additional $25,000,000 was appropriated for loans to other eligible borrowers, an increase over last year.

BUICK PLANNING LARGE EXPANSION

FLINT, Mich., July 21.—(AP)—Buick Division of General Motors Corporation announced plans for the largest peacetime expansion program in its history. It is designed to provide for a projected 40 per cent increase in employment opportunity and production capacity for more than 550,000 cars annually.

In announcing the program, Harlow H. Curtice, general manager of the Buick Division, said its first hase, reconversion for passenger car production, rapidly is being effected. Engineering models of the new cars have been completed he said, and now are ready for production.

The expenditure involved in the reconversion, modernization and expansion program was not disclosed. It is part of General Motors' over-all program for the expenditure of $500,000,000 in postwar rehabilitation and expansion.

WAR HERO GETS COZIEST CHAIR

Winner of Congressional Medal Returns To Home In Arkansas

LEPANTO, Ark., July 21.—(AP)—The coziest chair in the humble farm home of James Hendrix was turned over today to a fighting son, who went off to war a year ago and came back winner of America's highest military decoration.

"We want Jimmy to do nothing, just take it easy for the next 30 days," said the lean, proud father.

"I can use a bit of rest," laughed red-haired, 19-year-old S/Sgt. Jimmy Hendrix, beginning to show the wear of the mad homefront whirl that accompanies a winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The sergeant's East Arkansas neighbors have decided to leave him alone with his parents and his stairstep 10 brothers and sisters until next Friday when Lepanto will stage a big formal homecoming.

The family had planned to barbecue a 50-pound shoat for the homecoming dinner today but the idea was spiked by the hero.

"Naw, let's not kill the little pig," Jimmy said, "that would be a shame."

The sergeant, honest and abashed, stepped off the train last night in Memphis and was smothered by the tearful kisses of his parents.

The 135-pound sharpshooter, who with a rifle mopped up two German 88-mm. gun positions, then kissed each of his 10 brothers and sisters.

Then the welcoming delegation from Lepanto stepped up to shake the hand of the farm lad who, his mother says, learned his marksmanship at the age of five.

After the welcoming, they all returned in taxicabs to Lepanto. Young Hendrix plans to take things easy until the official homecoming celebration here next Friday.

"I hope Jimmy takes his discharge," said the father, lean, work-worn James Hendrix. "He would be a big help on the farm."

"Oh, I'd like to stay in the army maybe another 30 years," said Jimmy.

4 CRIPPLED AIRMEN PERMITTED TO FLY

TAMPA, Fla., July 21.—(AP)—The three airmen lay in Walter Reed hospital. Each had lost a leg in action.

Gen. Henry M. Arnold visited the hospital. He asked if there was anything he could do for them.

"Yes, Sir," they told the air forces chief in unison, "Let us fly again."

And today, along with another veteral who'd lost an arm, they are flying again at Drew Field here.

They are Capt. Kenneth C. Jewell of Cumberland, Md., Lt. Joseph M. Hannon of Boston and Lt. Wm. R. Kraham of Cooperstown, N. Y.

The airman with the missing arm is Lt. Reuben G. Bork of Bowler, Wis.

They are observation instructors at Drew.

It happened this way:

Some months after the request, they met the general again at Biltmore A. A. F. Hospital near Coral Gables. They talked to him. General Arnold realized they were very sincere.

He issued an order restoring them to flying status, and they became the first pilots to fly for the A. A. F. after losing limbs.

The radio compass was first used on aircraft July 8, 1920, on a flight of 95 miles from Norfolk, Va., to a battleship at sea.

NUNN-BUSH FIRM SHARING RETURNS

Point To Unbroken Record Of 520 Consecutive Pay Checks

MILWAUKEE, July 21.—(AP)—Henry L. Nunn and his Nunn-Bush Shoe Company employes—rather, his co-producers — have been planning for emergencies like unemployment, reconversion and recession for 10 years, and they say an unbroken record of 520 consecutive pay checks proves they know what they're doing.

It was in July, 1935, that Nunn decided to "share the production" with his employes, a unique system of plant operation that, he explained, lined up management and labor as employes of the consumer. Each determines his return from public acceptance of their joint product. Tonight the organization celebrates the 10th anniversary of its adventure in industrial management.

"It's not a philanthropy," Nunn insisted. "The employe gets what he earns."

Management receives the receipts from each 80 pairs of shoes sold and labor from the balance of 10 in 100 unit lots.

The employe receives a weekly check based on his established skill and production record—a drawing account arrangement. If sales are up, his additional earnings are compiled at the end of a four week period and are added to his pay check—with a portion set aside for times of stress.

"In the 10 years the plan has been in operation," Nunn said, "our basic group of 595 employes never has worked less than a 32 hour week and that only infrequently. Our contract provides that they cannot be laid off.

"We never have had to discharge an employe above the apprentice rating. Our losses to other plans in the industry have been nil, and we have had only an occasional loss to war industries. * * *

"When the demand for our product drops off, we will lower the price, and we will continue to lower the price until it is attractive to our customers. Our employes will continue to produce. Our factory will not be idle."

Of 900 employes, the 70 per cent who "share the production"—including all those above the apprentice class—averaged between $2,600 and $2,700 annually, which Nunn said was above the average for the industry.

TOWN PROCEEDINGS MUST BE PUBLISHED

Baton Rouge, La., July 21.—(AP)—The attorney general's department ruled in an opinion announced today that all proceedings of the mayor and board of aldermen of the town such as Scott, La., must be published in the official journal of such town.

L. P. Gremillion, special assistant attorney general, held in an opinion for Mayor G. J. LeBlanc of Scott, that it "seemed reasonable to assume" that if there were no newspaper in the town, any qualified newspaper in the same parish might be selected as official printer.

He noted further that the law provides the printer must be an elector of the parish who operates a newspaper within the parish.

FEPC IS SOUGHT IN NEW ORLEANS

Local Handling Of Employment Problems Declared Preferable

NEW ORLEANS, July 21.—(AP)—Industrialists who employ both white and Negro labor here have thrown their support behind a movement to set up a voluntary committee on fair employment practices, with a view to setting up sound employment standards.

At a meeting at the Association of Commerce yesterday the employment group, by resolution, requested John W. Moore, chairman of the association's manufacturing committee, to name a committee to participate in a special conference to outline a plan.

Both Moore and the Rev. Vincent O'Connell, S. M., chairman of the labor-industry department of the Catholic Committee of the South, stated at the meeting that an editorial, appearing in the New Orleans Item on June 15, pointed the way for a constructive treatment of fair employment problems.

The Item suggested that commercial and industrial organizations, along with labor unions, appoint delegates to a conference on fair employment practices on a voluntary basis, in lieu of Federal controls, and that these delegates select a committee to draft a code of employment ethics for the future well being of the city and state.

The Item said that representatives of the Central Trades and Labor Council, the regional Committee of Industrial Organization and other interested unions and civic organizations would be invited to take part in the conference.

Moore said that the manufacturers' meeting was called as a result of a preliminary meeting called by Father O'Connell at request of Ralph Nicholson, president and publisher of the Item.

Nicholson said he was confident "that New Orleans can be as enterprising as any city in the United States in working toward improved conditions" affecting employment relations.

Moore told the meeting that one of the desired goals was "economic equality," he suggested that this might be attained through improved living conditions for Negroes, particularly housing.

The date for the conference session and names of committee members were to be announced later.

PROTEST NUMEROUS PAROLES IN TEXAS

HOUSTON, Tex., July 21.—(AP)—A "mass march" on Austin by sheriffs and police chiefs of Texas "to get this parole business straightened out," was proposed today by Sheriff Buck Hale of Wharton county.

Hale's proposal was reported as the Houston Post said Harris County and Texas law enforcement officials are protesting against state paroles and pardons which have in the last three years, the paper said, reduced a normal prison population from 7,000 to 3,000 inmates.

Hale said that for some time he has been investigating reports that convicts and trusties in the penitentiary system are working a "shake down" on applicants for clemency.

"My information is that they are asking and getting from $1 to $15 on news as to status of an applicant's plea," the sheriff said.

In Houston Inspector C. V. Kern of the police department estimated almost 80 per cent of all major crimes are being committed by parolees and former convicts. He said that in the 18 months from Jan. 1, 1944, to July 1, 1945, the police department made 2,283 arrests of convicts and parolees.

"Practically every major crime has a parolee or former convict mixed up in it," he said. "Many unsolved crimes, such as burglaries and safe crackings, appear to be the work of experts."

The Post said that the Texas Police Association and the Texas Sheriffs Association in Austin Thursday appointed a committee to study clemencies in relation to a sharp wartime increase in crime.

MISSION UNUSUAL

F/O William Meredith recently received the air medal with one oak leaf cluster for distinguished service in the famous pseudo-civil airline which the air transport command operated between Scotland and Sweden before V-E day. This was one of the strangest military operations of the entire European war and carried pilots unarmed in civilian clothes over enemy areas to Sweden. The unit received a citation by General Eisenhower. Meredith graduated from Ouachita Parish High School in 1941, later graduated at Northeast Junior College and entered the air corps. He is now stationed in Naples, Italy. Picture shows the making of the award.

GUAM ANNIVERSARY CEREMONY IS HELD

GUAM, July 21.—(AP)—The people of Guam celebrated today the first anniversary of the American return to this big, green island which has been converted into what Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in a radio speech termed "one of the most powerful bases in the world."

The admiral's address, broadcast over a local radio station, was the only official observance of that day a year ago when soldiers and marines landed and took back what the Japanese seized from a handful of Leathernecks 32 months before.

In towns and villages, natives marked liberation day with music, dancing and speeches reflecting their gratitude for being released from the shackles of the Japanese.

There were masses too in the fine old churches that escaped the ravages of war or in temporary places of worship.

An important part is being played in modern aircraft production by the optical industry, particularly for use in photographing or visually inspecting hidden structural parts.

FARM PURCHASE LOANS REPORTED INCREASED

BATON ROUGE, La., July 21.—(AP)—Malcolm B. Alford, East Baton Rouge-Ascension parish supervisor of the Farm Security Administration, announced today that increased funds are now available for farm purchase loans under the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act.

He said returning war veterans who desire to buy family-type farms were the objects of a $25,000,000 congressional appropriation earmarked for veteran loans only, and that an additional $25,000,000 was appropriated for loans to other eligible borrowers, an increase over last year.

[SE]NATE TO OPEN HISTORIC DEBATE

[Un]ited Nations Charter Certain Of Passage After Discussion

By James Marlow

[W]ASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The [Sen]ate next week opens a historic [deb]ate, one of the most important in [its] history.

[T]he Senators will talk about our [join]ing the United Nations to keep [peac]e.

[It] won't be much of a debate. The [Sen]ators will be talking for the his[tory] books, saying, "Me, Too". They'll [vote] overwhelmingly for joining.

[A] few voices may be raised against [it]. They won't count for much in the [fina]l vote. The debate should end in [a w]eek or ten days.

[Wh]en we shall have abandoned iso[lati]onism, gone in for international [coop]eration politically and economical[ly].

[Jo]ining the United Nations throws [us i]nto world politics on a scale we [never dre]amed before. (Our economic co[oper]ation will be explained below.)

[Th]e galleries next week undoubted[ly w]ill be filled with approving men [and] women. There is a country-wide [desi]re for our joining the United Na[tions].

[It] was different 26 years ago when [Pres]ident Wilson's dream of our join[ing] the League of Nations was wreck[ed i]n this same Senate ... in 1919. [illegible] compel peace. She will answer just as promptly 'no'."

We stayed out of the League. The League failed. And Americans, some of them grandsons of the mothers Johnson was talking of, have gone to the Balkans, to China, to Arabia, to the Dalmatian coast, to Poland.

They haven't gone to Korea or Siberia yet to compel peace but they'll probably have to.

Once we're in the United Nations, we'll be up to our necks in world politics because any changes in a government, any uprising, any deep discontent eventually may involve us in world action to keep peace.

But the Senate this week rushed through the last of the big programs to put us into economic cooperation with the rest of the world.

It approved the Bretton Woods agreements and greatly increased lending powers for the Export-Import Bank. The House had approved both.

(The Bretton Woods agreements set up an international fund to keep world money stable and make loans for postwar reconstruction.

(The Export-Import Bank, entirely a United States affair, will lend money or guarantee loans for trade between this and other nations.)

Previously Senate and House had okayed the reciprocal trade agreements which permit the president to raise or lower tariffs to improve trade between us and nations which want to play ball with us in commerce.

These economic programs are, in their way, as important as our political program in joining the United Nations. They are intended to help keep the world on a healthy business and economic basis and avoid the discontents that lead to war.

NURSES AID WANTS MANY RECRUITS

The tenth class in nurses' aid will be formed immediately by the Red Cross, stated Mrs. Travis Oliver, chairman of the nurses' aid corps.

Registrations can be made starting Monday and continuing through Thursday from 2 to 4 p. m. at the Red Cross headquarters.

The need is great, Mrs. Oliver states and a large class is desired. The past few months, 54 diplomas have been given and 28 have been transferred to other chapters. This leaves a scarcity here.

In the past year, a total of 2,900 hours have been given to the work in hospitals here through this source. Right now the need is for replacements for so many have been transferred and an emergency exists.

[Of] that band of 1,919 Senators who [took] part in the League fight only [five] are left: Johnson, Republican, [Cali]fornia; Walsh, Democrat, Massa[chu]setts; Capper, Republican, Kansas; [Ger]ry, Democrat, Rhode Island, and [McK]ellar, Democrat, Tennessee.

[Jo]hnson, Capper and Walsh voted [agai]nst the League. Capper and Walsh [are] expected to vote for the United [Nati]ons this time. Gerry and Mc[Kell]ar voted for joining the League [and] will vote for joining the United [Nati]ons.

[He]'s an old man now, 79, bent, [feeb]le. He probably hasn't the [stren]gth for long, fiery oratory. But [he h]ad it in 1919. In a long speech [agai]nst Wilson's League on June 2, [1919,] Johnosn said:

"[A]merican fathers and American [moth]ers want peace, and they want [a L]eague of Nations which will give [them] peace. Ask any American moth[er in] Kansas or Illinois or California [if s]he is for peace. She will say ['yes'] with all her heart.

Tuberculosis In This Area

A highly informative series of articles concerning the tuberculosis rate in northeast Louisiana has been written by Dr. William S. Keller, director of the Ouachita Parish Health Unit, a lieutenant colonel in the United States Public Health Service who was loaned to us by the government. The first of these articles appeared in these columns last week and others will follow.

Dr. Keller's figures reveal that there is more tuberculosis per thousand persons in this area than elsewhere in the state. The parishes from Ouachita east to the Mississippi river apparently are more affected than any other section in Louisiana.

Dr. Keller's figures should accentuate the need for a state sanatorium in this area to care for those who have been stricken by this disease. We understand that the Department of Institutions has funds with which to build several sanitoria to take care of tubercular patients after the war, and the sites for some of these already have been selected. We do not know whether or not sites for all of the hospitals have been selected.

We have no desire to deprive any other section of a tuberculosis sanitorium, but we do believe that northeast Louisiana, where the need is so great, should have the facilities to care for those who have long suffered with the disease. In short, we believe that facilities should be provided where the need is greatest.

We believe it of the utmost importance to public officials and civic groups not only of Ouachita parish, but other affected parishes, to attempt to persuade state officials to build one of these facilities in this section where it is needed most.

PRELUDE TO INVASION

On the word of no less an authority than Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz the war against Japan has now entered the "pre-invasion phase." His statement is understood by the mighty sea and air assault still gathering momentum. It is plain that what is transpiring now is the prelude to invasion—or to unconditional surrender.

What Admiral Nimitz does not, and of course cannot, say is how long the pre-invasion phase will last. Judging by past experience, American troops will not set foot on the soil of the Japanese homeland for several weeks.

For landing on small islands or atolls such as Tarawa, Kwajalein and Iwo Jima, several days of concentrated bombardment may suffice to flatten everything in sight. It is different when the target area is a chain of islands 1,500 miles long and many miles broad, inhabited by a population almost as large as Germany's.

In the Philippines the pre-invasion stage covered a period of months in which carrier-plane attacks systematically wiped out the Japanese air force on the islands. Although the attacks on the Japanese home islands are in far greater strength, a similar result cannot be achieved in a few days.

The Japanese home army numbers 1,000,000 or more men—a far greater array of strength than the Germans had in Normandy. American commanders will not attempt invasion until the enemy's industry, transport system and air force are battered to a pulp and until enough troops are available in the Pacific for the job. Lack of enemy resistance to air and naval bombardment of the homeland may indicate that many of these preliminaries have been consummated. The next to last phase of the war has begun, and it may be over sooner than most persons dare hope.

THREE BIG JOBS

President Truman has decided wisely in turning down the proposal to permit Fred M. Vinson to keep the job of director of war mobilization while serving as secretary of the treasury. It is possible that Mr. Vinson could handle both posts, and in some respects their activities will mesh during the reconversion period. But he will have a big enough burden as it is in the treasury, especially in drafting a revamped tax system for the post-war period, without attempting to carry an additional burden.

As Mr. Vinson's successor in the war mobilization office Mr. Truman has selected John W. Snyder, who took over the job of federal loan administrator only a few weeks ago. The Saint Louis banker has the complete confidence of the president and he has behind him a record of public service which includes periods as executive vice president and director of the Defense Plant Corporation and assistant to the director of the RFC.

These shifts bring up once again the problem of finding the right man to supervise the vast lending activities of the federal government. The man who holds this post will wield tremendous influence over the business community in the years ahead. So far President Truman has given no indication of his choice. But judging by his past appointments, there is no possibility that he will select a man of the type of Henry Wallace to control federal lending.

RELIEF IN 1946

American citizens have a decided preference for Washington officials who have the good judgment to treat them as intelligent adults rather than as children who cannot stand the unvarnished truth. They will like and respect the new secretary of agriculture, Clinton P. Anderson, all the more for the sober and realistic report he has just made on the food situation.

Mr. Anderson has steered clear of promises which cannot be fulfilled. He makes no effort to pretend that everything is going to be all right now that he has taken over. Instead, he has had the wisdom to admit frankly that the food supply picture "is not an optimistic one on the whole" and that it cannot be expected to improve materially before 1946.

It is clear enough why this is so. As Mr. Anderson says, "The supply of food we have available to use at this time was fixed by what was done a year of more ago, just as what we do now will determine the food supply that will be on hand next year."

Until the new crops come in and until the measures adopted now have time to take effect, the best that can be done is to insure that there is a fairer distribution of scarce foods.

The public will be glad to see that this has a high place on the secretary of agriculture's program. The remainder of the proposals he has outlined are equally sound. They include increasing domestic production to the limit, paring down government and foreign demands, and obtaining supplementary supplies from South America.

Such measures, wisely planned and ably carried into effect, can beat the shortage by next year—if the weather cooperates, that is.

Best Performance: Sidney Greenstreet in "Christmas in Connecticut." Hollywood's biggest actor burns in a job to match his size.

My first reaction to news that exhibitors in Ohio are urging a boycott against Charles Chaplin pictures was to ask "what pictures?" Chaplin hasn't produced one since "The Great Dictator" and probably won't have another ready for release before 1950. But the threatened action of the Ohio showman can't be dismissed so casually, for it is based on the charge that Chaplin, despite innumerable opportunities, has contributed little to the war effort. There are other stars in the same boat and if I were one of them, I'd be digging post holes in the ground about now, for they are sure to become targets for public resentment when the facts are known. I've said before, and I say again, stars who have given generously of their time and talent are going to reap a [illegible] dividend in public appreciation. Those who have not given will pay a heavy penalty for their indifference.

Speaking of patriotism, I call your attention to an actor named Mack Cramer, now working in RKO's "River Boat Rhythm." Ever since Pearl Harbor Cramer has been trying to enlist in the armed forces. [illegible]

BY HENRY McLEMORE

By Mrs. Henry McLemore

Here we are living in New York City once again. In the wide open spaces of East Fifty-Sixth street between Park avenue and Lexington.

After my three years in our own beach home in Florida, where I could have opened up heavy mortar fire in the living room on all the "objects NOT d'art" which I hate and no one being the wiser, New York is going to take a little getting-used-to.

When Henry, who is on duty with the Army Ground Forces at 90 Church street, walks in in the evening and I ask, "How are you?" at least three people from the apartments a good spacious twenty feet across the back alley from us say, "Just fine, thank you."

We've had to take to whispering and neither of us is a natural born whisperer. We'd both make better auctioneers than secret agents.

And that business of radios. I only like certain programs but most evidently my taste is not that of my neighbors. One and all of them love one and all programs all of the time. At the moment I am listening to snatches of this and that from half a dozen radios and the effect is [illegible]. The effect I get right now is that the New York Philharmonic has gone a little daffy this afternoon and is interspersing such things as "Don't Fence Me In" and "Into Each Life Some Rain Must Fall" with their usual type of classical music. Earlier, whether we liked it or not, Henry and I ate breakfast with Dorothy and Dick, while the Camp Meeting Choir had us almost walking down the aisle [illegible]. And to think that I used to say "hush" to the Atlantic ocean when I thought it was getting too noisy. I might as well tell the Atlantic to hush its mouth as to try to tell it to my neighbors' radios.

Of course, we could pull all the [illegible]

. . . AND just before I start to scribble I think I'll brush my hair all up in a knot on top. Not [illegible] but just for fun. HMMMMM

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday School Lesson for July 29
Scripture: Genesis, Chapters 17, 18
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

How did God speak to men in olden times? The conversation between God and Abraham, recorded in Genesis 17, is detailed and specific. It has to do with the covenant between God and Abraham, and the promise that he would be the founder of a great people, and that in him would many nations be blest. Does God speak in that way to men today? Or did He speak to men in ancient times in a different way?

Dreams may have been a means of communication, as we know was the case with Jacob. The Bible is an Eastern book; and the people of the Orient have never been bothered with our western materialism and literalism. They express things in figures and symbols, and put truth in story form. They dramatize experiences and events, so that thoughts of God, and of God's grace and goodness, become expressed in God speaking.

Whatever the means or method, Abraham was sure that God spoke to him, and made a covenant with him. A covenant implies two parties, each of whom is to fulfill his part. The striking thing about this covenant that Abraham experienced is that it was a moral covenant.

The story is not that of a grandiose person, assuming that God had chosen him as a special favorite, glorying and boasting in his good fortune. On the contrary, it is the story of a man of great humility, accepting deep responsibility, knowing that anything that comes to him of possessions or of power is to be exercised and used for the benefit of others. It is the loftiness and nobility of such conceptions that make one sure that, in whatever way it may have occurred, God really did speak to Abraham, and held before him both a way of duty and a great destiny.

God's covenants and promises are conditioned on man's performance. Israel did become a great nation, but her greatness soon ceased when she forgot God and God's power in her deliverance and leadership, turning to idolatrous ways and socially harmful practices. A remnant of the sincere and devout, however, always remained, no matter how great the peril, suffering, or disappointment, and through these, the faithful in Israel and the Christians, whose religion has been superimposed upon that of Judaism, have been blest, and greater blessings for them are in store.

Does God make similar covenants with men and nations today? I believe so; and I believe that the quality of our American life and destiny depends upon the way in which we accept God's covenant and work out our salvation, and the salvation of the world, knowing that it is "He that worketh in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure."

We are too apt to assume that character and performance have little to do with our destiny; that we are chosen for greatness, and are going to be greater and greater just because it is our destiny. The history of the kingdoms of Israel ought to teach us better. It is as true of nations, as it is of individuals, that "the soul that sinneth, it shall die." No more than the Jews of old are we Americans God's chosen people, unless we accept His choice as those who above all else will seek to do His will, and build for ourselves, and serve the world, in love, righteousness, and truth.

ASSERTS PLENTY OF SOAP IS PRODUCED

HOUSTON, Tex., July 21—(P)—Folks, don't hoard soap. There's plenty of it and more is being made all the time.

So declared Robert Jones, division manager of Lever Brothers Company, large manufacturer, after a soap-mad public stormed a 15-store chain here yesterday which had advertised soap and washing powders.

Housewives shoved to buy a normal four or five weeks supply of soap at the stores within a few hours.

"There shouldn't be any shortage of soap," Jones emphasized. "We're actually allocating to our accounts more soap this year than we did in 1942 when everyone could buy all they needed."

"My division covers all of Texas, Louisiana and part of Mississippi," he said. "I've discovered it's hard to [illegible] a bar of soap on a counter anyw[here]. I understand this condition exist[s] over the country. People don't re[alize] there's enough for all."

Louis Hayward will use his veteran's priority for immediate construction of a swank nitery . . . Dick Powell, whose divorce from Joan Blondell became final last week, has formally promised not to wed June Allyson until after completion of this current role in RKO's "Cornered"—and that means August 15.

Mary Pickford will ink a contract to do two radio shows per week for an Eastern manufacturer, come fall . . . Hmm! Venita Vardon's mama is living on the ranch of Jack Oakie, her ex-son-in-law; she says he needs her more than Venita does . . . Looks like Dolores del Rio, a bonfire in Mexican pictures, still nurses a grudge against Hollywood; she's nixed three definite comback offers and swears she won't work in American films again . . . Injured: Otto Kruger, thrown into a barbed wire fence by an unruly horse during filming of "Duel In The Sun" scenes.

Spencer Tracy's stage play, "Out of Hell," will debut in Providence, R. I. Sept. 27 . . . Add Hollywood war heroes: Sabu, back from the Pacific with a DFC, a Presidential Citation and an Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters . . . Humphrey Bogart says he'll collect enough on bets to retire, if his marriage survives V-J Day.

Preview Nights: Pic of a lacklustre week: Warner Brothers' "Christmas in Connecticut" (Barbara Stanwyck-Dennis Morgan). Santa Claus gives movie fans a stocking full of deluxe laughs . . . Good: Republic's "Road to Alcatraz" (Robert Lowery-June Storey-Grant Withers) Edge-of-your-seat melodrama with a whirlwind climax . . . So-So: Universal' "The Beautiful Cheat" (Bonita Granville-Noah Beery, Jr.). As stereotyped as a Hollywood divorce announcement . . . 20th Century-Fox's "And Then There Were None" (Barry Fitzgerald - Walter Huston - Louis Hayward). A thrill-less murder mystery that should convince its producers that crime doesn't pay . . . Universal's "On Stage Everybody" (Peggy Ryan-Johnny Coy-Jack Oakie). A necklace of good song-and-dance numbers strung on a story-thread too fragile to support them . . . Best Performance: Sidney Greenstreet in "Christmas in Connecticut." Hollywood's biggest actor burns in a job to match his size.

My first reaction to news that exhibitors in Ohio are urging a boycott against Charles Chaplin pictures was to ask "what pictures?" Chaplin hasn't produced one since "The Great Dictator" and probably won't have another ready for release before 1950. But the threatened action of the Ohio showman can't be dismissed so casually, for it is based on the charge that Chaplin, despite innumerable opportunities, has contributed little to the war effort. There are other stars in the same boat and if I were one of them, I'd be shaking post holes in the ground about now, for they are sure to become targets for public resentment when the facts are known. I've said before, and I say again, stars who have given generously of their time and talent are going to reap a rich dividend in public appreciation. Those who have not given will pay a heavy penalty for their indifference.

Speaking of patriotism, I call your attention to an actor named Mark Cramer, now working in RKO's "River Boat Rhythm." Ever since Pearl Harbor, Cramer has been trying to enlist in the armed forces. He has been turned down on every occasion because of injuries received long years ago in a traffic accident. Recently, after his umpteenth effort to get by the medical examiners, he received an official letter from the War Department asking him to please stop trying. In a way, that letter might be construed as a reprimand; in another way, it's a badge of distinction to be displayed with as much pride as a decoration for valor.

Ten years ago, the refusal of Tom Mix to endorse a smoking tobacco because he wouldn't disillusion his kid fans made him the target for a barrage of jeers. Today, five years after his death, nearly 3,000,000 youngsters still belong to the youth organization he founded. Jeers are decidedly out of order.

BY HENRY McLEMORE

By Mrs. Henry McLemore

Here we are living in New York City once again. In the wide open spaces of East Fifty-Sixth street, between Park avenue and Lexington.

After my three years in our own beach home in Florida, where I could have opened up heavy mortar fire in the living room on all the "objects NOT d'art" which I hate and no one being the wiser, New York is going to take a little getting-used-to.

When Henry, who is on duty with the Army Ground Forces at 90 Church street, walks in in the evening and I ask, "How are you?" at least three people from the apartments a good spacious twenty feet across the back alley from us say, "Just fine, thank you."

We've had to take to whispering, and neither of us is a natural born whisperer. We'd both make better auctioneers than secret agents.

And that business of radios. I only like certain programs but most evidently my taste is not that of my neighbors. One and all of them love one and all programs all of the time. At the moment I am listening to snatches of this and that from half a dozen radios and the effect is genuinely startling. The effect I get right now is that the New York Philharmonic has gone a little giddy this afternoon and is interspersing such things as "Don't Fence Me In" and "Into Each Life Some Rain Must Fall" with their usual type of classical music. Earlier, whether we liked it or not, Henry and I had to "breakfast with Dorothy and Dick" while the Camp Meeting choir had us almost walking down the aisle while breakfasting. And to think that I used to say "shush" to the Atlantic ocean when I thought it was getting too noisy. I might as well tell the Atlantic to hush its mouth as to try to tell it to my neighbors' radios.

Of course, we could pull all the windows down and have a little more privacy but suffocation and heat prostration is kind of a high price to pay for privacy.

It is surprising to learn, after a few days in New York, that the laundry problem is just as acute as it is in other parts of the country. Because, walking about the streets here, you would think that half the women in New York were washerwomen. That is because of the new hair-do. You know, that new style where the hair is swept up and rolled in a knot on top of the head. The most fashionable women look exactly like the washerwomen of my childhood. I believe that if the city would place washtubs and wash boards on the street corners the gals who go in for this hair-do would start plunging their hands in the steamy suds and start to washing. That hair-do must do somthing for a woman, because it does anything but improve her appearance. The only girls or women who look well in this rubby-dub-dub style are truly beautiful to begin with and could wear their hair or anybody else's and look lovely. I usually have a go, a very secretive go, at trying to see how I look with my hair done in the latest fashion. After four days in New York, however, I haven't even been tempted to see how I'd look with the new up-swing.

I'm about to go in the bathroom and turn it into a small laundry as I always do when we are away from home. (Only yesterday I heard the sweet old refrain for the first time in a long time, "How the devil is a man supposed to take a shower with all those stockings and that pink junk hung all over the place?") AND, just before I start to scrubbing I think I'll brush my hair all up in a knot on top. Not to see how it looks, of course, I already suspect that, but just for fun, HMMMMM.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday School Lesson for July 29
Scripture: Genesis, Chapters 17, 18
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

How did God speak to men in olden times? The conversation between God and Abraham, recorded in Genesis 17, is detailed and specific. It has to do with the covenant between God and Abraham, and the promise that he would be the founder of a great people, and that in him would many nations be blest. Does God speak in that way to men today? Or did He speak to men in ancient times in a different way?

Dreams may have been a means of communication, as we know was the case with Jacob. The Bible is an Eastern book; and the people of the Orient have never been bothered with our western materialism and literalism. They express things in figures and symbols, and put truth in story form. They dramatize experiences and events, so that thoughts of God, and of God's grace and goodness, become expressed in God speaking.

Whatever the means or method, Abraham was sure that God spoke to him, and made a covenant with him. A covenant implies two parties, each of whom is to fulfill his part. The striking thing about this covenant that Abraham experienced is that it was a moral covenant.

The story is not that of a grandiose person, assuming that God had chosen him as a special favorite, glorying and boasting in his good fortune. On the contrary, it is the story of a man of great humility, accepting deep responsibility, knowing that anything that comes to him of possessions or of power is to be exercised and used for the benefit of others. It is the loftiness and nobility of such conceptions that make one sure that, in whatever way it may have occurred, God really did speak to Abraham, and held before him both a way of duty and a great destiny.

God's covenants and promises are all conditioned on man's performance. Israel did become a great nation, but her greatness soon ceased when she forgot God and God's power in her deliverance and leadership, turning to idolatrous ways and socially harmful practices. A remnant of the sincere and devout, however, always remained, no matter how great the peril, suffering, or dispersement; and through these, the faithful in Israel, and the Christians, whose religion has been superimposed upon that of Judaism, have been blest, and greater blessings for them are in store.

Does God make similar covenants with men and nations today? I believe so; and I believe that the quality of our American life and destiny depends upon the way in which we accept God's covenant, and work out our salvation, and the salvation of the world, knowing that it is "He that worketh in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure."

We are too apt to assume that character and performance have little to do with our destiny; that we are chosen for greatness, and are going to be greater and greater just because it is our destiny. The history of the kingdoms of Israel ought to teach us better. It is as true of nations, as it is of individuals, that "the soul that sinneth, it shall die." No more than the Jews of old are we Americans God's chosen people, unless we accept His choice as those who above all else will seek to do His will, and build for ourselves, and serve the world, in love, righteousness, and truth.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
NEA Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—First objective of the so-called "Water Lobby" in Congress is to fight the creation of a Missouri Valley Authority. A bill to set up a MVA is now before Congress. It was introduced by Sen. James E. Murray of Montana. Hearings were held before a Senate Commerce subcommittee last April and in May a report was made opposing the project. Score round one for the 31 organizations in the water lobby.

Senator Murray's MVA bill has two more chances in September. First before an irrigation subcommittee, then before an agriculture subcommittee. Battle lines are being drawn now for these fights.

It must be understood, of course, that there is a strong lobby supporting MVA, but it is not as old and not as experienced and not as well coordinated as the water users' lobby in opposition. Included in the pro-MVA lobby are the National Farmers' Union of tenant farmers and small landowners, the A. F. of L., the C. I. O., the public power advocates, the supporters of the Tennessee Valley Authority who endlessly sing its praises as "the perfect state," and a number of new civic organizations recently formed in St. Louis and the Missouri basin. In early July they all met at Omaha, formed the Missouri Valley Regional Committee for MVA and started out to get a million signature on a petition for Congress to create an MVA.

MVA, however, isn't the only target which the 31 organizations in the water lobby are spouting at. There are four other bills to create other authorities pending before Congress. The water lobby wants to drown them all.

Rankin Wants Nine Authorities

Most ambitious of the other authority proposals is Mississippi Congressman John Rankin's bill to divide the whole United States into nine areas and put an authority over each one —Atlantic Seaboard each of the Alleghenies, Great Lakes and Ohio Valley, Missouri, Columbia, Arkansas and Colorado valleys, Southwestern Authority and a California Authority to function west of the Sierras. It is admittedly too far-reaching to have much chance.

Washington Senator Hugh B. Mitchell proposes a Columbia Valley Authority for the three northwestern states and a bit of Canada.

Ohio Congressman Bob Bender proposes an Ohio Valley Authority to cover most of Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia, with bites into west Pennsylvania, north Tennessee, southeast Illinois.

South Carolina Congressman Butler B. Hare proposes a Savannah Valley Authority, taking in narrow strips on the Carolina-Georgia line.

But these five bills by no means represent all the valley authority thinking and planning being done in Washington.

Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation has studies under way to divide the entire west—roughly, everything west of Kansas City—into some 20 valley developments: Rio Grande, Red, Arkansas, Colorado, Columbia, Central, Missouri and so on.

Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes naturally wants control of all these 20 valleys kept in his Bureau of Reclamation.

The Lobby Likes Ickes' Plan

In fact, Ickes has a Missouri Valley plan of his own worked out. And the 31 organizations making up the water lobby have seized upon this Bureau of Reclamation plan as the principal reason why no other plan and no MVA is needed to replace it.

Army engineers have traditionally supervised flood control and navigable rivers. Under such an expanded valley authority program as is now before Congress, all this supervision over navigable streams would be taken away from the War Department and given to the authorities. Army engineers aren't interested in hydroelectric power except incidentally. When they build a dam it's for flood control. And the engineers have hosts of friends and supporters in states where there are recurrent floods.

The powerful water lobby, supporting both engineers and Bureau of Reclamation as established old line agencies with whom they are accustomed to do business, is in there fighting to preserve these older government agencies and to skip all this fancy, New Dealish valley authority stuff.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?—John 4:20.

I think am sure a brother's love exceeds
All the world's loves in its unworldliness.

ASSERTS PLENTY OF SOAP IS PRODUCED

HOUSTON, Tex., July 21.—(AP)—Folks, don't hoard soap. There's plenty of it and more is being made all the time.

So declared Robert Jones, division manager of Lever Brothers Company large manufacturer, after a soap-mad public stormed a 15-store chain here yesterday which had advertised soap and washing powders.

Housewives shoved to buy a normal four or five weeks supply of soap at the stores within a few hours.

"There shouldn't be any shortage of soap," Jones emphasized. "We're actually allocating to our accounts more soap this year than we did in 1942 when everyone could buy all they needed."

"My division covers all of Texas, Louisiana and part of Mississippi," said. "I've discovered it's hard to a bar of soap on a counter anyw I understand this condition exist over the country. People don't re there's enough for all."

HANDSOME NEW NURSES HOME TO BE THROWN OPEN HERE

Biggest Wartime Construction Project In City Cost Over $200,000.

Constructing a building costing more more than a fifth of a million dollars in the midst of wartime building prohibitions, a task of no small proportions, has been attempted and concluded by St. Francis Sanitarium, which announces the completion of the large, commodious and vitally needed nurses home. The big modern fireproof structure, costing approximately $205,000—the largest wartime building project in Monroe—now stands as a monument to the onward progress of this institution.

It will be dedicated and blessed by Rev. Father J. C. Marsh, the next pastor of St. Mathew's Church, today at 2 p. m. the public being invited. After this exercise, an open house will be held until 5 p. m. Sunday.

Student nurses will be everywhere in evidence to escort the public through the spacious hall into the laboratories, class rooms, recreation rooms and other facilities of the home they have long desired and now are proud to see actually completed. Incidentally the opening date is the anniversary of the opening of St. Francis Sanitarium back in 1913, or 32 years ago.

A large punch bowl will be placed [illegible] conveniently and will be presided [illegible] by members of St. Francis School of Nursing Alumnae. The history of the building is of interest.

ing and advanced college work. During the three-year course, six weeks of vacation are allowed. A preliminary period of four months is included in the course. During this time, students are on duty in the hospital for short periods only, most of the time being devoted to intensive study. The curriculum is based on the outline suggested by the National League of Nursing Education.

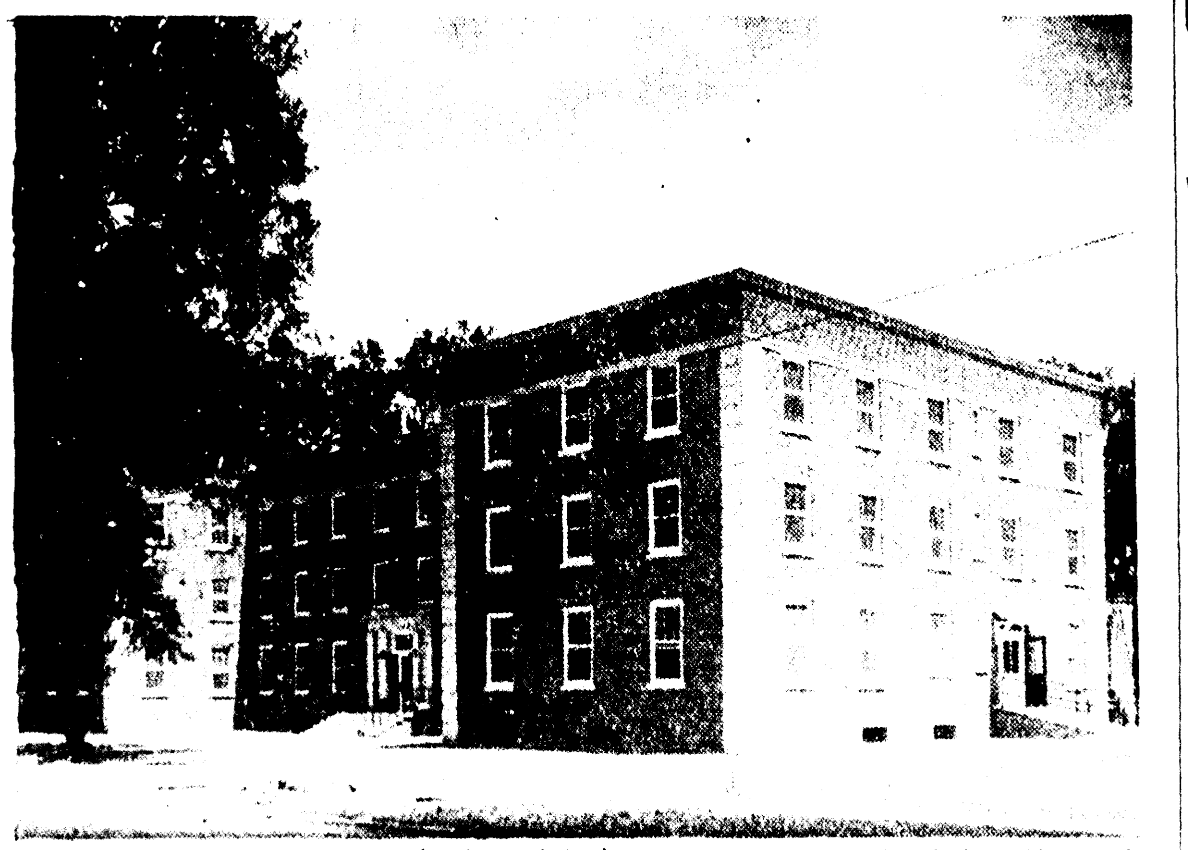
The St. Francis Alumni Association was formed in 1925, it was stated by Mrs. Cameron.

The new home will provide unsurpassed facilities for the library of which the school is justly proud. It is considered one of the finest nurses' libraries in the state. Among gifts that have been received for this library are books from Dr. C. P. Gray and from Mrs. J. W. Murphey in memory of her husband a former well known Monroe physician.

The honor roll of which this school is mighty proud includes the names of nurses who have been trained here who are now in the service of their country.

There are 38 of them and of the number 14 have been overseas. The list of those overseas is as follows: Hattie Ates, Ollie Bratton, Dorothy Chase, Mohaley Davis, Fann e T. Dent, Evelyn French, Marie Gaddis, Sarah Halterman, Edna Hargrove, Emma J. Henley, Martha Hostutler, Elizabeth Reames, Mollie B. Reese and Virginia Rogillio. Other nurses on the same honor roll who are in government service but not overseas are: Valerie Floyd, Blanche Gaddis (deceased), Vera Gay, Marjorie Gordon, Media Sorrell, Mary Ruth Lewellyn, Frances Berrison Latt, Marjorie Noble McDonough, Viola Reppond, Mary Sargent, Martha Sargent, Sarah Scalia, Mary Gilbert, Emma Lou Bradley, Eugenia Arrant, Gladys Austin, Carletta H. Bayne, Mary J. Calhoun, Loren Clark, Hazel Cooley, Geneva Davis, Edith Farris, Lodine Finch and Pauline Finch.

TO OPEN FINE HOME FOR NURSES



Shown above the new structure erected at Oak and Catalpa streets at a cost of over $200,000, being Monroe's largest wartime construction project now brought to completion. Formal inspection will take place from 2 to 5 p. m. today when the public will be invited to attend.

OKINAWA CHAPEL OPENING NOISY

Wind Shrieks And Bulldozer Chugs As Men Offer Prayer

OKINAWA—(AP)—A shrieking wind—the edge of a tropical typhoon—whipped through the open sides of the tent as the chaplain's voice lifted in prayer. "O Lord, that we may be strong in the tasks ahead."

Driven rain and sand stung faces and bared heads of the 60 P. S. army air corps men standing reverently in rough pews, fashioned from pickup lumber.

A chugging bulldozer clanked by on the coral road outside as the chaplain finished and announced "Hymn 54." The wind shrilled in rising fury. A seabee dynamite blast shook the ground.

Above it all the air men sang, accompanied by the chords of an old upright piano—"hear thou the prayer I make on bended knee. . . ."

The hymn ended, they knelt and prayed for strength, for their loved ones and for their country. They prayed for peace.

Thus was inaugurated the new chapel of a bombardment group on Okinawa. Protestant chaplain, Capt. Marion O. Smith of Galesburg, Ill., was filling in for Maj. Howard J. Johnson of Fort Worth, Tex., ill with yellow jaundice caught while preaching at the front lines on Luzon in the Philippines.

At the piano was Pvt. Tom Snook of Fort Wayne, Ind. Before the war he studied classical piano in Chicago.

About 50 feet long and 20 wide, the chapel stands among three grey stone Okinawa tombs. It was built in six days, largely under the direction of Pfc. Don Lence of Carbondale, Ill., a radio operator who doubles as Major Johnsen's assistant. The floor is dirt. A small altar holds a golden cross and two candles, placed upon red felt covering two stacks of "C" rations. Over the altar billows a white silk parachute.

Protestant services are held Sunday mornings. Catholic services are held Sunday evenings by Father John T. Cullen of (238 Locust St.) Janesville, Wisc., former priest at St. Joseph's parish, Fond D'Lac, Wisc. Staff Sgt. Sidney Emeson of Denver, Colo., who works in a general staff office reads Jewish services on Friday nights.

Men at the front seek solace in religion, says Chaplain Smith. They often ask shyly how he, a man of God, can condone war, even participate in it.

To this Chaplain Smith answers, in effect:

"You are fighting to place your life as a dike against the flood of world-wide destruction. Christ died willing to stop sin. The New Testament says others may give their lives as the ransom for man. We come over here to help free the world from recurring war and devastation and suffering. We can fight, with our soul at peace."

HANDSOME NEW NURSES HOME TO BE THROWN OPEN HERE

Biggest Wartime Construction Project In City Cost Over $200,000.

Constructing a building costing more more than a fifth of a million dollars in the midst of wartime building prohibitions, a task of no small proportions, has been attempted and concluded by St. Francis Sanitarium, which announces the completion of the large, commodious and vitally needed nurses home. The big modern fireproof structure, costing approximately $205,000—the largest wartime building project in Monroe—now stands as a monument to the onward progress of this institution.

It will be dedicated and blessed by Rev. Father J. C. Marsh, the next pastor of St. Mathew's Church, today at 2 p. m. the public being invited. After this exercise, an open house will be held until 5 p. m. Sunday.

Student nurses will be everywhere in evidence to escort the public through the spacious hall, into the laboratories, class rooms, recreation rooms and other facilities of the home they have long desired and now are proud to see actually completed. Incidentally the opening date is the anniversary of the opening of St. Francis Sanitarium back in 1913, or 32 years ago.

A large punch bowl will be placed conveniently and will be presided over by members of St. Francis School of Nursing Alumnae. The history of the building is of interest.

So congested had conditions become that the War Production Board was asked to give consent for the construction of this building. Investigators were sent to Monroe and an exhaustive study of conditions was made. This resulted after considerable correspondence in the obtaining of a permit for a three-story building, the top floor to be unfinished.

Plans were drawn by H. H. Land, Monroe architect, and the contract for in excess of $180,000 was awarded to Ford, Bacon and Davis. Ground was broken the middle of last November and construction has gone ahead with rapidity for a wartime job. Later WPB gave consent for the finishing of the third floor which has been done, and which brings the total construction cost to $205,000.

The building faces north on Oak street at the corner of Catalpa street, having a frontage of 155 feet and depth of 63 feet on Catalpa. There are in all 52 bedrooms in the three-story structure. However the walls, it is explained, will permit of two more additional stories if conditions later warrant.

On the main floor are the administrative offices, class rooms, laboratories, living room, kitchen, reception room and library.

On the second and third floors are 26 bedrooms each, numerous baths, private laundry for student nurses and two individual closets in each room—two persons being assigned to a room.

The building is in brick with stone trimmings, and is of reinforced concrete and fireproof. Many windows were incorporated in the plant to assure a sufficient lighting. There is an interconnecting phone system on each floor and telephones throughout the building.

The finish of the corridors and halls is in tiled flooring and all walls are plastered and painted.

The building has steam heat and the boiler room is on the first floor.

In all details the building is equipped to afford the very latest in those features that will appeal to student nurses.

When in the next few days the nurses move into their new quarters they will vacate the two small frame buildings on the hospital grounds and also a number of rooms in the Sanitarium proper will be then available when so vacated. In the past it has been necessary to reject many patients for lack of space. This now to a degree will be remedied, it is stated.

Nurses in normal times can enter St. Francis School of Nursing in either September or February, but this time because of the great demand for nurses, the September enrollment period has been advanced and will take place on Monday morning. Indications, states Mrs. J. D. Cameron, director of the nursing school, is that there will be 100 women to enter at this time which will be an unprecedentedly large enrollment. The course requires three years to complete, is accredited by the state board and students participate in the U. S. Cadet corps.

The St. Francis School of Nursing, like the Sanitarium in which it is located, dates back to 1913 and is conducted by the Franciscan Sisters. It provides for all branches of service and in its existence has graduated approximately 300 nurses. Its first graduate is still one of the best known and most efficient of local nurses, Miss Nettie E. Mullin.

This school of nursing is registered and approved by the Louisiana Board of Nurse Examiners which qualifies graduates from this school for preparation in any specialized type of nursing and advanced college work. During the three-year course, six weeks of vacation are allowed. A preliminary period of four months is included in the course. During this time, students are on duty in the hospital for short periods only, most of the time being devoted to intensive study. The curriculum is based on the outline suggested by the National League of Nursing Education.

The St. Francis Alumni Association was formed in 1925, it was stated by Mrs. Cameron.

The new home will provide unsurpassed facilities for the library of which the school is justly proud. It is considered one of the finest nurses' libraries in the state. Among gifts that have been received for this library are books from Dr. C. P. Gray and from Mrs. J. W. Murphey in memory of her husband a former well known Monroe physician.

The honor roll of which this school is mighty proud includes the names of nurses who have been trained here who are now in the service of their country.

There are 38 of them and of the number 14 have been overseas. The list of those overseas is as follows: Hattie Ates, Ollie Bratton, Dorothy Chase, Mahaley Davis, Fannie T. Dent, Evelyn French, Marie Gaddis, Sarah Halterman, Edna Hargrove, Emma J. Henley, Martha Hostutler, Elizabeth Reames, Mollie B. Reese and Virginia Rogillio. Other nurses on the same honor roll who are in government service but not overseas are: Valerie Floyd, Blanche Gaddis (deceased), Vera Gay, Marjorie Gordon, Media Sorrell, Mary Ruth Lewellyn, Frances Benison Lutz, Marjorie Noble McDonough, Viola Reppond, Mary Sargent, Martha Sargent, Sarah Scalia, Mary Gilbert, Emma Lois Bradley, Eugenia Arrant, Gladys Austin, Carletta H. Baynes, Mary J. Calhoun, Loree Clark, Hazel Cooley, Geneva Davis, Edith Farris, Lurline Finch and Pauline Finch.

TO OPEN FINE HOME FOR NURSES

Shown above the new structure erected at Oak and Catalpa streets at a cost of over $200,000, being Monroe's largest wartime construction project now brought to completion. Formal inspection will take place from 2 to 5 p. m. today when the public will be invited to attend.

OKINAWA CHAPEL OPENING NOISY

Wind Shrieks And Bulldozer Chugs As Men Offer Prayer

OKINAWA—(AP)—A shrieking wind—the edge of a tropical typhoon—whipped through the open sides of the tent as the chaplain's voice lifted in prayer: "O Lord, that we may be strong in the tasks ahead."

Driven rain and sand stung faces and bared heads of the 60 P. S. army air corps men standing reverently in rough pews, fashioned from pickup lumber.

The hymn ended, they knelt and prayed for strength, for their loved ones and for their country. They prayed for peace.

Thus was inaugurated the new chapel of a bombardment group on Okinawa. Protestant chaplain, Capt. Marion O. Smith of Galesburg, Ill., was filling in for Maj. Howard J. Johnson of Fort Worth, Tex., ill with yellow jaundice caught while preaching at the front lines on Luzon in the Philippines.

At the piano was Pvt. Tom Snook of Fort Wayne, Ind. Before the war he studied classical piano in Chicago.

About 50 feet long and 20 wide, the chapel stands among three grey stone Okinawa tombs. It was built in six days, largely under the direction of Pfc. Don Lence of Carbondale, Ill., a radio operator who doubles as Major Johnson's assistant. The floor is dirt. A small altar holds a golden cross and two candles, placed upon red felt covering two stacks of "C" rations. Over the altar billows a white silk parachute.

Protestant services are held Sunday mornings. Catholic services are held Sunday evenings by Father John T. Cullen of (338 Locust St.) Janesville, Wisc., former priest at St. Joseph's parish, Fond D'Lac, Wisc. Staff Sgt. Sidney Emeson of Denver, Colo., who works in a general staff office reads Jewish services on Friday nights.

Men at the front seek solace in religion, says Chaplain Smith. They often ask shyly how he, a man of God, can condone war, even participate in it.

"You are fighting to place your life as a dike against the flood of world-wide destruction. Christ died willing to stop sin. The New Testament says others may give their lives as the ransom for man. WALKER LEADS IN SHOOTING EVENT

Officer Scores 104.6 Points Out Of Possible 112

Police Officer E. L. Walekr topped other members of the Monroe police department again the past week in the department's periodic pistol shoot on the police range, scoring a high of 104.6 points out of a possible 112 for the 48-shot, 15-event program.

Walker scored 47 hits, missing only one shot, and placed 40 shots in "killing areas" of the human torso target. Sgt. William O. Causey followed Walker in second place with 93.9.

The shoot drew the fewest officers to the range since the target work began a few years ago, but ranking in the first ten with Walker and Causey were Officer J. E. McMullen, 96.3; Captain J. M. Busby, 85.8; Officer Morris Merham, 81.4; Officer J. R. Culliphe, 79.7; Officer George Woods, 76.6; Officer Fred Kirtley, 75.6; Chief J. D. Busby, 72.1; and Officers E. G. Odom and Leo Fleming who were tied for tenth with 56.5 each. Kirtley's 75.6 high was for a morning performance. He returned to the range in the afternoon for another trial but fell off to 69.4.

However, Kirtley, in his morning shoot, matched Walker in total hits with 47, but 17 of his shots were out of killing zones. Culliphe was third in hits with 46 and the order of other "tops" in total hits were Causey 45, McMullen, 44, Captain Busby and Woods, 43 each; Barham, 42, Fleming, 39, and Chief Busby and Odom, 38 each.

The shoot was conducted by T. O. "Toby" Bancroft, local business man and gun enthusiast, who shot at both sessions, getting a 78.6 in the morning and 92.2 in the afternoon. G. C. McAuliffe, another local pistol enthusiast, joined the officers at both sessions with 95.1 for the morning and 100.9 for the evening.

NORTHEAST JUNIOR COLLEGE OFFERS DIVERSIFIED STUDY

Dean Cline Describes Courses To Be Given Here This Fall

By Dr. Rodney Cline

Dr. Rodney Cline, dean of Northeast Junior College, explains for the benefit of the public the wide variety of courses and curricula that this institution has to offer.

"Through the courtesy of the Publishers and Editors of this paper I hope to present each week for several weeks an article about your Junior College, the Northeast Junior College of Louisiana State University. It will be appreciated if after reading this you will call it to the attention of your friends.

"One of the outstanding features of Northeast Junior College is the wide variety of courses and curricula which are available to the students of Monroe, West Monroe, and northeast Louisiana. The generous number of the different types of work offered is made possible by the splendid financial support provided by the state through Louisiana State University. During the war years many colleges have found it necessary to curtail the variety of courses offered, but during this period Northeast Junior College has actually expanded its opportunities for study.

"Three general types of students are provided for at Northeast Junior College, and the needs of these determine the list of courses and curricula to be offered. The three student groups are (1) those who plan to seek a college degree and who need at Northeast Junior College the first two years of the work which they would otherwise have to go to a senior college or university to get; (2) those who want a terminal program of two years or less to enable them to hold a good position in business or industry without further training, and (3) those who want one or more courses for their cultural value or to improve their qualifications for the work which they are already doing.

"For the first group, those who hope to obtain a college degree, Northeast Junior College provides most of the courses and curricula which are offered for the first two years of college work at Louisiana State University or at other standard four-year institutions. Available fields of study include agriculture, [illegible] home economics, commerce, [illegible] administration and secretarial science, engineering [illegible]

[illegible]

Northeast Junior College is proud to [illegible] hundreds of students of this type during the past two years [illegible] both night and day classes. [illegible] are urged to [illegible] with college officials as to the [illegible] in which they are interested. This can be done by personal visit, by mail, or by telephone. Ask for [illegible] the dean or the registrar.

"One week from today through the courtesy of this newspaper I shall present a discussion of costs of attending Northeast Junior College as compared to those at other colleges."

TWO NEGROES RUN OVER BY TRAINS

One Negro was fatally injured and another seriously hurt in wo separate but similar accidents in which they were run over by trains yesterday morning and Friday evening.

John D. Fields, 20, West Monroe Negro, died at St. Francis Sanitarium at 6:20 o'clock yesterday morning shortly after he had been run over by a switch engine at the Brown Paper Mill, Dr. J. T. French reported. The Negro, employed in the wood yard at the mill, was rushed in a Mulhearn ambulance to the hospital where it was reported he had lost his left leg just below the knee and the right foot had to be amputated. The accident was said to have occurred about 4 a. m.

Jamie Clance, 8-year-old Negro, was in a serious condition at Conway Memorial Hospital, where he was being treated for the loss of both legs. The Clance boy was said to have lost his legs when he was run over by a passenger train at the Missouri Pacific passenger depot Friday evening. A Hall ambulance took the boy to the hospital. It was reported one leg had been completely severed and the other so badly mangled that it had to be amputated.

The first automobile show was held in 1900 in the United States.

AMERICAN MONEY SENT TO HITLER

State Department Release Shows Loans Help Build Up Germany

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The story of American financial deals which built up Germany between wars and hints that some American tycoons backed Hitler in 1930 were released by the state department today.

The department, following its usual custom of publishing state papers after 15 years, put out 2,000 pages of documents on American foreign relations in 1930.

The chapter on Germany gives considerable attention to Hitler, then clutching for power. It also shows that American policy worked closely with Wall Street financiers, anxious to float loans of the troubled, unstable Reich.

The American charge d'affaires in Berlin wrote Secretary of State Henry Stimson that he had "heard "certain American financial interests" were actively backing Adolf Hitler and his Nazis as a means of combating trends toward Socialism in Germany.

George A. Gordon, the charge d'affaires, also said that "Hitler received very substantial financial support from certain large industrial interests." He judged, however, that their influence on him "has been definitely a restraining one."

There was a sharp difference of opinion between Undersecretary of State Joseph P. Cotton and the American reparations agent in Paris, S. Parker Gilbert, on the advisability of a huge loan to the Germans.

Gilbert was against it unless it was specified that the Germans had to use the funds to pay their debts.

Cotton, who talked it over with J. P. Morgan and representatives of Lee, Higginson Co., felt that France and Britain were trying to push the U. S. out of the market and saw no reason to block the deal.

It has been widely predicted that German policy following the Reich's recent defeat will be based on pleas for sympathy, combined with efforts to get around anti-aggression controls. The 1930 papers show actual operation of just such stumbling blocks in the path of those who tried once before to destroy German war potential and plans.

Germany was expounding a desire for international peace, but stressing German armed equality with the rest of Europe as an important basis of that peace.

While Hitler, three years from power, ranted about tearing up treaties, the German ambassador in Washington complained about Germany's military inferiority imposed by the treaty of Versailles.

At that time, he didn't get to the point of demanding revision of the Versailles arms clauses, however. He took the stick by the other end and pressed for disarmament by everyone else, stating that Germany's policy was "equality through disarmament."

A state department release described American relations with other countries in 1930 as "cordial and little marred by tension or controversy."

NEW DELHI—(AP)—The famous "Mars task force" which chased the Japanese from Central Burma in a trek of 350 miles and helped clear the old Burma road is no more.

Dissolution of the combat team, which was flown to China over the Himalayas after its mission in Burma to fight for several months with the U. S. army's Chinese Combat Command, was announced by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters in Chungking.

Known officially as the 532nd Brigade, the Mars Task Force, formed in August, 1944, as a long range penetration combat unit, was composed of the 475th infantry, drawn from the original Merrill's Marauders and veterans of the Myitkyna campaign, the 124th Cavalry, a Texas national guard unit, and other groups.

Fighting over some of the most difficult country in the world, the Mars Force acquired a spectacular reputation in Burma, where in clearing the Japanese from the Burma road, the two regiments, moving independently, lunged well over 200 miles through jungle, over mountains, across rapid rivers, cut off completely from friendly forces and depending entirely on air supply.

Days were terrifically hot and nights freezing cold. On occasion, the Mars men marched 22 hours a day. Some days they could make only three and a half miles. The 475th reached the old Burma road first and held a dominating position between Wanting and Lashio with artillery, mortars and machine guns for 18 days before enemy resistance collapsed.

The 124th Cavalry, assigned to destroy Japanese supplies in the Namhpaka area, established contact January 19, and fough' continuously for 17 days as it established itself on a hill opposite that held by the 475th on the other side of the road.

At the conclusion of the campaign in mid-February, the force commander, Brig. Gen. John P. Willey, said, "The Mars Task Force has covered the most hazardous terrain in Burma ever traversed by an American unit. A magnificent job of marching over rugged mountains was followed by an equally magnificent job of fighting."

There are dozens of stories of heroism of Mars men, both during the marches and fighting, but the one recounted most often is that of Lt. Jack Knight of Mineral Wells, Tex., a troop commander of the 124th Cavalry. He was out in front when his column went up the hill to its final objective. From the top, he located a cluster of Jap pillboxes. Calling to his men to follow, he plunged ahead, grenading four of the pillboxes as he went.

A Jap grenade fell near him and fragments caught him in the face. Finding his carbine ammunition exhausted, Knight turned back to get more from his friend, Lt. Leo Tynan of San Antonio.

"I can't see," he told Tynan. One of his eyes was closed and blood covered his face. Organizing his men with arm signals, he went out front again, only to fall wounded from another enemy grenade.

His younger brother, First Sgt. Curtis Knight, ran toward him, but was hit by a Japanese bullet and seriously wounded.

Pulling himself on one elbow, Lieutenant Knight called, "Curtis, are you hurt?"

Someone answered, "Yes," and Knight called out that his brother should be carried back.

Then, still raised on one elbow, he motioned his men forward with his free arm and was trying to reach his sixth pillbox when a bullet him him and he fell dead.

The hill on which he died has been named Knight Hill by order of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, who visited the spot on his inspection of the Mars Brigade. Knight was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously and was the first recipient of the decoration in the India-Burma theater.

WALKER LEADS IN SHOOTING EVENT

Officer Scores 104.6 Points Out Of Possible 112

Police Officer E. L. Walekr topped other members of the Monroe police department again the past week in the department's periodic pistol shoot on the police range, scoring a high of 104.6 points out of a possible 112 for the 48-shot, 15-event program.

Walker scored 47 hits, missing only one shot, and placed 40 shots in "killing areas" of the human torso target. Sgt. William O. Causey followed Walker in second place with 93.9.

The shoot drew the fewest officers to the range since the target work began a few years ago, but ranking in the first ten with Walker and Causey were Officer J. E. McMullen, 96.3; Captain J. M. Busby, 85.8; Officer Morris Marham, 81.4; Officer J. R. Cullipher, 79.7; Officer George Woods, 76.6; Officer Fred Kirtley, 75.6; Chief J. D. Busby, 72.1; and Officers E. G. Odom and Leo Fleming who were tied for tenth with 56.5 each. Kirtley's 75.6 high was for a morning performance. He returned to the range in the afternoon for another trial but fell off to 60.4.

However, Kirtley, in his morning shoot, matched Walker in total hits with 47, but 17 of his shots were out of killing zones. Cullipher was third in hits with 46, and the order of other "tops" in total hits were Causey, 45; McMullen, 44; Captain Busby and Woods, 43 each; Barham, 42; Fleming, 39; and Chief Busby and Odom, 38 each.

The shoot was conducted by T. O. "Toby" Bancroft, local business man and gun enthusiast, who shot at both sessions, getting a 78.6 in the morning and 99.2 in the afternoon. G. C. McAuliffe, another local pistol enthusiast, joined the officers at both sessions with 95.1 for the morning, and 100.9 for the evening.

Mrs. Cook, Personal's "Yes Man"

Accused

I've been accused of being a "Yes Man" . . . and come to think of it—I am! Which is only logical, after all, for the more times I say "Yes" the more loans I make. And since making Personal Loans is my full-time business that's mighty important to me.

Usually I can say "Yes" in a hurry. But even when circumstances are unusual, I try to find a way to work out a deal. That's why we are so often able to make loans that others cannot. Of course—once in a while I can't find a way. That's natural. When that happens, I personally sit down with the customer and discuss the situation frankly, on a common sense basis.

Like most people, I don't believe in unnecessary borrowing . . . but when a loan is needed or to your advantage, I'll be glad to say "Yes". Anytime you need extra cash—see me, won't you? Right now, for instance, see me at Personal Finance Co., 2nd Floor, Bernhardt Building, or phone me at 1288.

NORTHEAST JUNIOR COLLEGE OFFERS DIVERSIFIED STUDY

Dean Cline Describes Courses To Be Given Here This Fall

By Dr. Rodney Cline

Dr. Rodney Cline, dean of Northeast Junior College, explains for the benefit of the public the wide variety of courses and curricula that this institution has to offer.

"Through the courtesy of the Publishers and Editors of this paper I hope to present each week for several weeks an article about your Junior College, the Northeast Junior College of Louisiana State University. It will be appreciated if after reading this you will call it to the attention of your friends.

"One of the outstanding features of Northeast Junior College is the wide variety of courses and curricula which are available to the students of Monroe, West Monroe, and northeast Louisiana. The generous number of the different types of work offered is made possible by the splendid financial support provided by the state through Louisiana State University. During the war years many colleges have found it necessary to curtail the variety of courses offered, but during this period Northeast Junior College has actually expanded its opportunities for study.

"Three general types of students are provided for at Northeast Junior College, and the needs of these determine the list of courses and curricula to be offered. The three student groups are: (1) those who plan to seek a college degree and who need at Northeast Junior College the first two years of the work which they would otherwise have to go to a senior college or university to get; (2) those who want a terminal program of two years or less to enable them to hold a good position in business or industry without further training; and (3) those who want one or more courses for their cultural value, or to improve their qualifications for the work which they are already doing.

"For the first group—those who hope to obtain a college degree—Northeast Junior College provides most of the courses and curricula which are offered for the first two years of college work at Louisiana State University, or at other standard four-year institutions. Available fields of study include agriculture, veterinary science, home economics, commerce (both business administration and secretarial science), engineering (mechanical, civil, electrical, aeronautical, and chemical), music (vocal, instrumental, and theory), pre-med (nursing, dental and laboratory technician), curricula for the various fields of teaching, and general liberal arts for those not intending to specialize in any one field. It would be hard to find a college where freshman and sophomore students have a wider selection of courses and curricula available to them. Furthermore, the fact that Northeast Junior College is a part of Louisiana State University guarantees the standardization and quality of the work done.

"Northeast Junior College takes much pride in the work done with terminal students—those who want only two years or less of college work to train them for a specific kind of position in business or industry. The Twin Cities and northeast Louisiana are full of Northeast Junior College terminal students holding good positions and contributing to the general betterment of their community. The whole state is richer as a result. It is to be emphasized that these terminal programs including agriculture, home economics, commerce of every kind, mechanics, radio (including radar), and aviation can be had only in a junior college. Senior colleges simply do not undertake this type of work.

"For the third type of students—those who want only one or only a few courses without intending to seek a diploma or degree—the opportunities at Northeast Junior College are very good. Any course offered to regular students is available for these part-time students including veterans, housewives, and business and industrial employees. Night classes in all fields are available upon demand. Northeast Junior College is proud to have served hundreds of students of this type during the past two years through both night and day classes. Readers of this article are urged to confer with college officials as to the availability of the work in which they are interested. This can be done by personal visit, by mail, or by telephone. Ask for either the dean or the registrar.

"One week from today through the courtesy of this newspaper I shall present a discussion of costs of attending Northeast Junior College as compared to those at other colleges."

TWO NEGROES RUN OVER BY TRAINS

One Negro was fatally injured and another seriously hurt in wo separate but similar accidents in which they were run over by trains yesterday morning and Friday evening.

John D. Fields, 20, West Monroe Negro, died at St. Francis Sanitarium at 6:20 o'clock yesterday morning shortly after he had been run over by a switch engine at the Brown Paper Mill, Dr. J. T. French reported. The Negro, employed in the wood yard at the mill, was rushed in a Mulhearn ambulance to the hospital where it was reported he had lost his left leg just below the knee and the right foot had to be amputated. The accident was said to have occurred about 4 a. m.

Jamie Clance, 8-year-old Negro, was in a serious condition at Conway Memorial Hospital, where he was being treated for the loss of both legs. The Clance boy was said to have lost his legs when he was run over by a passenger train at the Missouri Pacific passenger depot Friday evening. A Hall ambulance took the boy to the hospital. It was reported one leg had been completely severed and the other so badly mangled that it had to be amputated.

The first automobile show was held in 1900 in the United States.

AMERICAN MONEY SENT TO HITLER

State Department Release Shows Loans Help Build Up Germany

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The story of American financial deals which built up Germany between wars and hints that some American tycoons backed Hitler in 1930 were released by the state department today.

The department, following its usual custom of publishing state papers after 15 years, put out 2,006 pages of documents on American foreign relations in 1930.

The chapter on Germany gives considerable attention to Hitler, then clutching for power. It also shows that American policy worked closely with Wall Street financiers, anxious to float loans of the troubled, unstable Reich.

The American charge d'affaires in Berlin wrote Secretary of State Henry Stimson that he had "heard "certain American financial interests" were actively backing Adolf Hitler and his Nazis as a means of combating trends toward Socialism in Germany.

George A. Gordon, the charge d'affaires, also said that "Hitler received very substantial financial support from certain large industrial interests." He judged, however, that their influence on him "has been definitely a restraining one."

There was a sharp difference of opinion between Undersecretary of State Joseph P. Cotton and the American reparations agent in Paris, S. Parker Gilbert, on the advisability of a huge loan to the Germans.

Gilbert was against it unless it was specified that the Germans had to use the funds to pay their debts.

Cotton, who talked it over with J. P. Morgan and representatives of Lee, Higginson Co., felt that France and Britain were trying to push the U. S. out of the market and saw no reason to block the deal.

It has been widely predicted that German policy following the Reich's recent defeat will be based on pleas for sympathy, combined with efforts to get around anti-aggression controls. The 1930 papers show actual operation of just such stumbling blocks in the path of those who tried once before to destroy German war potential and plans.

Germany was expounding a desire for international peace, but stressing German armed equality with the rest of Europe as an important basis of that peace.

While Hitler, three years from power, ranted about tearing up treaties, the German ambassador in Washington complained about Germany's military inferiority imposed by the treaty of Versailles.

At that time, he didn't get to the point of demanding revision of the Versailles arms clauses, however. He took the stick by the other end and pressed for disarmament by everyone else, stating that Germany's policy was "equality through disarmament."

A state department release described American relations with other countries in 1930 as "cordial and little marred by tension or controversy."

PETAIN TESTIFIES FOR PEYROUTAN

Says He Had Laval Arrested To Prevent Seizure Of Colonies

PARIS, July 21.—(AP)—Marshal Petain testified today that he had Pierre Laval arrested Dec. 13, 1940, to prevent Laval from using French troops to seize African colonies which had joined Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French movement.

He said he did this because he was afraid such action would result in war between Britain and France. The fugitive Laval at present is under detention in Spain.

The 89-year-old marshal, facing trial Monday on a charge of having intelligence with the enemy, was a witness at a preliminary hearing of Marcel Peyrouton, former minister of the interior in the Vichy government, who faces a similar charge.

Peyrouton was taken to grim Fort Demontrouge for the hearing, and there Judge Mitton questioned the marshal and the civil minister on the Laval affair.

Petain corroborated Peyrouton's version of the Vichy premier's arrest and said he ordered it when it became apparent that Laval intended to use armed force to seize the colonies, beginning with Tchad, then serving as a relay point on the Brazzaville to Cairo route.

The question of retaking the colonies was the immediate cause of the arrest, Petain asserted, adding that he also wanted to stop Laval's entire course of complete collaboration.

The aged marshal said German pressure forced Laval's release after a short time. But he asserted that Laval never regained his Vichy position and never influenced Vichy decisions after his arrest.

Laval's arrest never was adequately explained by the Vichy government, but the accepted version at that time was that it followed a cabinet row over Laval's agreement to move the French government from Vichy to Paris.

Petain's corroboration of Peyrouton's statements today came as preparations neared completion for the aged marshal's trial on Monday.

A responsible source in the supreme court disclosed that the state planned to base its case against Petain on 14 questions relative to the circumstances of France's collapse in 1940 and subsequent events under the German occupation.

Petain will be examined himself and some 50 witnesses will be called.

Among the more important points are the circumstances leading up to his request for an armistice, how he acquired power to speak for France and his reasons for abolishing the Republican form of government.

WORKERS AT SELMAN FIELD ARE NEEDED

Due to an urgent need for additional civilian clerk-typists to supplement and to staff Selman Field administrative offices, the post civilian personnel officer, Capt. Charles O. Taylor yesterday issued an appeal for more qualified personnel.

Capt. Taylor stated that clerk typists receive $1,508 per annum, male storeskeepers $1,704 per annum and male laborers receive $.49 cents per hour. "These workers are needed to assist the government in training men at once," Capt. Taylor pointed out.

Persons interested should contact the local civil service board, Postoffice Building in Monroe.

COLVIN PRAISED BY HIS GENERAL

Bolling Advises Parents Regarding Death Of Local Corpsman

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Colvin have just received the following letter from A. R. Bolling, Major General, U. S. Army, Commanding 84th Infantry Division:

"I am writing in the hope that you will find some comfort in this additional information concerning your son, Private First Class Jesse M. Colvin, Jr., 38524804, 84th Quartermaster Company, who died April 20, 1945, in Hanover, Germany.

"Jesse, a member of the second squad of the service platoon, was with a supply convoy which on April 19, 1945, was going to a rear area depot to obtain rations for the division. Because of the time required for the trip, the convoy made an overnight stop at Hanover. Members of the group attempted to awaken your son the morning of April 20, 1945, to continue the trip. When he did not respond, it was discovered that he was dead. His body was prepared for burial in an American Military Cemetery at Margraten, Holland.

"Your son was assigned to the division in August, 1944, a short time before we left the United States. The Quartermaster Company did much to make possible our successes in the assault which was launched on Nov. 18, 1944, against the Siegfried Line in the Ninth Army sector near Geilenkirchen, Germany. As our division was consolidating its positions before the Roer River, we were shifted to the First Army in Belgium to assist in stopping the offensive by Von Rundstedt, who was threatening the City of Marche. Here, the Quartermaster Company performed its duties in a superior manner despite the extreme cold and deep snow. When the division had completed its mission in Belgium, we returned to the Ninth Army sector and spearheaded the offensive over the Roer River. In the fast drive toward the Rhine, which we reached in five days, much credit can be given the Quartermaster Company, which continued the fine support necessary for the advance of combat duties.

"On April 1, 1945, our division crossed the Rhine and started the rapid drive eastward. Hanover, twelfth largest city in Germany, was captured on April 10, 1945, and four days later our troops reached the Elbe river, from which patrols went forward to make contact on May 2, 1945, with the Russian forces. Our division was operating in the sector along the Elbe river, when your son started for the supply depot to obtain rations for our troops.

"Jesse was promoted to the rank of Private First Class on Jan. 5, 1945, in recognition of his performance of duties. He was held in high regard by the officers and enlisted men of his company.

"A United States Army chaplain in keeping with the Protestant faith of your son, conducted the funeral service at the American Cemetery at Margraten. The cross above Jesse's grave is marked permanently with his name and Army serial number. Religious services are held daily in memory of these Americans and in tribute to their devotion to duty. A [illegible] ceremony is conducted each afternoon at 5 o'clock. Fresh flowers are placed on the graves of the Americans each day by the pepole of Holland.

"In behalf of the many friends of your son, I extend to you our heartfelt sympathy."

Private First Class Colvin graduated from O. P. H. S. in 1943, and before entering armed services was employed by the United Gas Corporation of Monroe.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Colvin, Sr., and a sister, Mrs. B. E. Audirsch. The late Mrs. Geraldine Rembisz was also his sister.

Building Permits

I. W. Jaffe was granted permission to erect a one story frame building to be used for a two-car garage at 211 Howard street. The total costs, including an addition, will not exceed $600 and day labor will be used.

Permission was given to Gus E[illegible] to build an awning to a brick building which will be used for a store at 113 South Grand street. Day labor will be used and the total costs will not exceed $75.

CEMETERY WORKING

COOPERATION

To The Editor:

Let's give "cooperation" the headlines for the next ten years or so. We have gone wild on the subject of individual freedom. If we will pipe down on "freedom" and preach "cooperation," the hope for world peace will have a better chance of fulfillment. The importance of freedom is being emphasized at the expense of discipline and cooperation. The two ideals are compatible but the balance is delicate.

Freedom is not an individual right to be enjoyed at any time one feels the urge. We have recommended freedom (let it mean what it will) and discipline is being paralyzed even among our children. Freedom, like fire, is useful in its sphere. But it is intended to function on a very high level. "One is free to 'do justly, love mercy and walk humbly before God.'" This is all the surviving freedom one can attain.

Cooperation is the key to peace and prosperity. We have the charter for a better world. Let us build upon it through cooperation.

To The Editor:

I have been searching diligently the past five months for an unfurnished house or apartment for my wife and two children but without avail. I know that there are many veterans of this war like myself who have returned to their home-town of Monroe and cannot find a place to live.

Knowing of the desire of your newspaper to be of public service, especially to returning ex-service men, I believe that you can be of inestimable assistance to the returning veterans by giving appropriate publicity to the dire need of adequate housing by this group. In this way I believe the general public will be made aware of the situation and will, in turn, let you know of any housing available.

We do not ask for the impossible but only for what is reasonable and necessary for the successful and happy continuation of a man's natural wish to have his family with him.

Wedding Of Social Prominence Occurs At St. Mark's Church In Shrevepor

Miss Helen Ewing Weds Lt. Henry Clay

Nuptial Event In Shreveport Claims The Interest Of Friends Throughout The State

A wedding of prominence, claiming the interest of friends throughout the South, took place at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Shreveport, La., Thursday evening, July 19, when Miss Helen May Ewing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dunbrack Ewing, became the bride of Henry Brevard Clay, lieutenant in the naval air corps, son of Clifford C. Clay and Mrs. A. M. Williamson, both of Atlanta, Ga. The Rev. Frank E. Walters, rector, officiated in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives many of whom were from out-of-town.

Predominant in the flowers adorning the church were white gladioli, marconi daisies and regal Madonna lilies overflowing from tall white pedestal vases. In the background myriad cathedral tapers gleamed in white seven-branched, candelabra. Baskets of white blossoms leading from the steps of the chancel to the altar formed a flowery aisle. In this enclosure the vows were spoken. The choir loft was hidden from view with luxuriant palms and ferns.

The pews, reserved for members of the family and intimate friends, were marked with sprays of white blossoms tied with long lengths of white tulle and white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Bertha Moore at the organ rendered a program of nuptial music which included "Cantabile" by Rene Becker, "Prelude from Lohengrin" by Wagner and "Reverie" by Clarence Dickinson. She also accompanied Mrs. Ross B. Nelson, Sr., who sang "O Perfect Love" by Burleigh and immediately before the first notes of the processional announcing the approach of the bridal party "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. D ring the ceremony, Gounod's "Sanctus" was played softly on a harp and string ensemble.

The blonde beauty of the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was enhanced by her wedding gown of white slipper satin fashioned with close-fitting, elongated bodice, joined to the full skirt with corded scallops. The high-necked waist had a deep yoke back and front, of Chantilly lace embroidered in a design of seed pearls and the long tight sleeves were fastened at the wrists with tiny self-covered buttons. The veil, of rose pointe and princesse lace, was posed over illusion and fell in misty folds to the end of the fan-shaped train. It was held becomingly to her head by a coronet of rose pointe lace. A string of real pearls, an heirloom in the family, was her only ornament and she carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her great grandmother. Her bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley, tied with narrow white satin streamers caught with valley lily sprays, cascaded to the floor.

The bride's attendants were Miss Lucile Hamilton, maid of honor, Mrs. Charles T. Beard, matron of honor, Miss Beulah Clay, Mrs. Robert Ewing Brown and Miss Virginia McCrossin of Colorado Springs, bridesmaids, and Judy Disosway, flower girl. They were similarly attired in gowns of blush pink and carried similar bouquets of shaded pink carnations tied with bows of rainbow taffeta ribbons. The dresses of the bridesmaids, maid of honor and matron of honor were styled with very full skirts and sweetheart necklines, with double rushing at the shoulders where the bodice joined the cap sleeves and outlining the deep yokes in the back and across the hips. Judy's dress was of shell pink net over taffeta, with the short puff sleeves trimmed with double ruching and a velvet ribbon sash tied in a bow at the back. In her hair she wore a bandeau of ruffled horsehair braid with clusters of sweetheart roses. On her arm she carried a small blue satin basket from which she scattered rose petals in the path of the bride.

John W. Clay served his brother as best man and ushering the guests to their seats were Lt. Robert Ewing Brown, Cpl. William Clay, William Bowers and Sgt. Toulmin H. Brown. Acolytes were John Monette and Marshal Martin, Jr.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom wore beautiful chiffon dinner dresses in shades of turquoise trimmed with passementerie with orchid corsages.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents immediately following the ceremony, the guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. Frank H. Ford and Mrs. D. P. Hamilton. Receiving in the living room were Mr. and Mrs. John D. Ewing, members of the bridal party and Mrs. Williamson, mother of the bridegroom. Greeting the guests in the sunparlor were Miss Nell Fish, Mrs. William Bowers and Mrs. Esther Ewing Brown.

The entire lower floor was banked with flowers. In the music and sun rooms, varieties of summer flowers in pink were used. In the living room and the dining room, white roses, lilies, daisies and gladioli were used in profusion, the mantels in both rooms being used as vantage points for artistic floral arrangements. Myriad white tapers glowed in the dining room. On the bride's table, overlaid with handsome imported lace cloth, the tiered wedding cake, placed on a large oval reflector, was the piece de resistance. It was delicately embossed in lilies of the valley with green leaves on which lacy butterflies were poised. Single specimen gardenias were scattered with artistic profusion down the full length of the table. At either end tall white tapers burned in branched silver candelabra.

Presiding at the cake service were Mrs. John H. Tucker and Mrs. Justin Querbes, assisted by Miss Louise Weiss, Miss Lola Ann McFadin, Miss Gloria Smitherman and Miss Mary Louise Gustine.

In the garden, cool and green with hanging baskets, ferneries, caladium leaves and beds of begonia, punch was served by Mrs. E. Bernard Weil and Mrs. John B. Atkins, Miss Lena Jones and Mrs. Glen E. McFadin from punch bowls placed on wrought iron tables. They were assisted by Miss Nell Querbes, Miss Suzanne Peyton, Miss Betty Dorchester, Miss Jean Trippett and Miss Virginia Graham.

Mrs. Randolph Marston presided over the guest book.

For traveling to Sea Island, Ga., where the young couple will honeymoon, Mrs. Clay wore a distinctive tailleur of lightweight pink wool with white silk tucked blouse with lace inserts and lace frills at the wrists and at the neck. She wore a brown felt hat covered with gossamer veiling with white dots and brown suede shoes, brown bag and orchid corsage. She also wore the bridegroom's wedding gift, a beautiful watch. Following the honeymoon Lt. and Mrs. Clay will be at home in Jacksonville, Fla., where he will be stationed.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Mrs. A. M. Williamson, the bridegroom's mother; Mrs. William Bowers, his sister, and Mrs. Bowers; Miss Beulah Clay, another sister, all of Atlanta, Ga.; Robert Ewing and Sgt. Toulmin Ewing, cousins of the bride; Mrs. Esther Ewing Brown, her aunt; Leon Trice and Miss Lindel Da Ponet, all of New Orleans; John W. Clay of Nashville, Tenn.; and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Ewing and children, Esther and Robert, of Monroe.

Mrs. Clay's paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ewing of New Orleans, and her maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin De Graffenreid Gray of Shreveport. The Ewing family has been prominent for three generations in southern journalism. The bride is a graduate of Gulf Park College and attended Wellesley College and she has spent much time at the family summer home, "Katlaha" (Magnolia) in Pass Christian, on the Mississippi gulf coast.

Lieutenant Clay's paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Clay, Sr., of Americus, Ga., descendants of the Virginia Clays of Colonial days, and his mother's parents are Mrs. Beulah Bell of Atlanta, Ga., and the late Charles Martin of Cincinnati, Ohio. He attained scholastic, social and athletic honors at Vanderbilt University, where he was graduated cum laude, and received his wings at Pensacola, Fla., May 29, after serving 31 months overseas.

Elizabeth Johnson Receives Fellowship

Miss Johnson Will Return To Chapel Hill To Continue Study In Dramatics

It will be a busy school year, brimming with fascinating things for Elizabeth Johnson, of Swartz, who is planning to return this fall to the University of North Carolina for graduate work. Receiving a fellowship granted this spring from the Rockefeller Foundation, she will continue her studies in the field of dramatic arts in which she was majoring when she received the bachelor's degree at Chapel Hill in June. The fellowship covers tuition and includes a cash award and also additional work and responsibility.

Her interest in speech goes back to high school and Northeast Junior College where her first two years of college work were done. She was active in the Speech club and the Order of Sephocles, an organization which encouraged original dramatic writing.

During her junior year at the University of North Carolina Miss Johnson developed a particular interest in costuming and makeup, work in which the dramatic arts department offered wide scope in study and practical opportunity. Endless hours were spent in research, especially when plays called for period designs. Much time also was consumed in sketching costumes, rummaging for materials or searching among old garments for parts that could be combined to form suitable ones. Parts of four costumes were used to create one which was donned by Petruchio in "Taming of the Shrew," one of this year's major productions on the campus.

The university is proud of its costume collection, which includes some that are two or three hundred years old. Many of these have been given to the Carolina Playmakers; others have been purchased by the organization. Before the war much of the material that went into costumes was woven especially for stage productions at the University. Trips were made to nearby factories where beautiful drapery material was bought for costumes. What with limited materials and designs, dramatic arts students have found it tantalizing to see what could be done in transforming once homely materials such as muslin and cotton flannel into rich looking fabrics by experimenting with dyes. Student talent also was used in designing and making most of the costumes for "The Lost Colony," Paul Green's historical drama that attracted audiences throughout the nation before transportation difficulties caused temporary abandonment of the play, which was given out-of-doors with the sea as a background.

Last year Miss Johnson costumed three experimental plays written and directed by students and she assisted in this work in five major productions, "Taming of the Shrew," which she had the additional responsibility of designing makeup, "Skin of Our Teeth," "Gondoliers," an original three-act musical production written by a graduate student, and "Calliope," a North Carolina folk play, by Virginia Page Spencer.

Another interesting experience which she had last year was listening to radio lectures by Betty Smith, who is the author of pamphlets on the art of writing and producing for radio as well as the best-seller novel, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

Major and Mrs. D. E. Pace and daughter Linda are visiting Mr. A. G. Pace before leaving for San Antonio, Texas where Major Pace will be discharged from the army. Major Pace was former commanding officer at Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Batten have as their house guests Mrs. Batten's aunt, Mrs. C. W. Edwards, and her daughter Miss Nancy Edwards, of Flomaton, Ala.

GIVEN FELLOWSHIP

Miss Elizabeth Johnson, former student at Northeast Junior College, who graduated from the University of North Carolina this spring, will return to Chapel Hill on a fellowship given her by the Rockefeller Foundation to do graduate work in dramatic arts.

Elizabeth Johnson Receives Fellowship

Miss Johnson Will Return To Chapel Hill To Continue Study In Dramatics

It will be a busy school year, brimming with fascinating things for Elizabeth Johnson, of Swartz, who is planning to return this fall to the University of North Carolina for graduate work. Receiving a fellowship granted this spring from the Rockefeller Foundation, she will continue her studies in the field of dramatic arts in which she was majoring when she received the bachelor's degree at Chapel Hill in June. The fellowship covers tuition and includes a cash award and also additional work and responsibility.

Her interest in speech goes back to high school and Northeast Junior College where her first two years of college work were done. She was active in the Speech club and the Order of Sophocles, an organization which encouraged original dramatic writing.

During her junior year at the University of North Carolina Miss Johnson developed a particular interesting in costuming and makeup, work in which the dramatic arts department offered wide scope in study and practical opportunity. Endless hours were spent in research, especially when plays called for period designs. Much time also was consumed in sketching costumes, rummaging for materials or searching among old garments for parts that could be combined to form suitable ones. Parts of four costumes were used to create one which was donned by Petruchio in "Taming of the Shrew," one of this year's major productions on the campus.

The university is proud of its costume collection, which includes some that are two or three hundred years old. Many of these have been given to the Carolina Playmakers; others have been purchased by the organization. Before the war much of the material that went into costumes was woven especially for stage productions at the University. Trips were made to nearby factories where beautiful drapery material was bought for costumes. What with limited materials and designs, dramatic arts students have found it tantalizing to see what could be done in transforming once homely materials such as muslin and cotton flannel into rich looking fabrics by experimenting with dyes. Student talent also was used in designing and making most of the costumes for "The Lost Colony," Paul Green's historical drama that attracted audiences throughout the nation before transportation difficulties caused temporary abandonment of the play, which was given out-of-doors with the sea as a background.

Last year Miss Johnson costumed three experimental plays written and directed by students and she assisted in this work in five major productions, "Taming of the Shrew," which she had the additional responsibility of designing makeup, "Skin of Our Teetth," "Gondoliers," an original three-act musical production written by a graduate student, and "Calliope," a North Carolina folk play, by Virginia Page Spencer.

Another interesting experience which she had last year was listening to radio lectures by Betty Smith, who is the author of pamphlets on the art of writing and producing for radio as well as the best-seller novel, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

Major and Mrs. D. E. Pace and daughter Linda are visiting Mr. A. G. Pace before leaving for San Antonia, Texas where Major Pace will be discharged from the army. Major Pace war formerly commanding officer at Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Batten have as their house guests Mrs. Batten's aunt, Mrs. C. W. Edwards, and her daughter Miss Nancy Edwards, of Flomaton, Ala.

Miss Cartlidge Weds Mose A. Treadwell

Wedding In Farmerville Is Of Interest To Many Friends In North Louisiana

Miss Onita Cartlidge, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Cartlidge of Farmerville, Louisiana, became the bride of Mr. Mose Allen Treadwell, Jr., United States Naval Reserve, only son of Rev. and Mrs. M. A. Treadwell of Houston, Texas, in an impressive double ring ceremony, which was solemnized July 14 at 8:00 p. m. at the First Baptist church in Farmerville. Rev. M. A. Treadwell, father of the groom, officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, southern smilax, tall floor baskets of marconi and shasta daisies. Candles burned in seven branched candelabra placed in the background where an arch entwined with ivy formed the setting for the ceremony.

White bows of tulle marked the pews, reserved for relatives and special guests. Preceding the ceremony a pre-nuptial concert was rendered by Miss Elaine Canady, of Baton Rouge, pianist, and Mr. Fred Preaus, violinist. Miss Canady accompanied Mrs. Milo Buchaman, of El Dorado, Ark., who sang, "At Dawning."

The ushers, Mr. J. M. Edwards, uncle of the bride, and Lt. Jewel Davidson of Monroe, lighted the candles.

Mrs. Cartlidge, mother of the bride, was, becomingly dressed in a navy blue crepe model with hat and accessories to match. Her corsage was of white carnations and daisies.

Mrs. Treadwell, the bridegroom's mother, was attractively attired in a black sheer model with corsage of white carnations. Miss Oree Martin of Winnfield, the bride's only attendant, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of blue net with a tiered skirt. A ruffle over a net yoke gave an off the shoulder effect. She carried a bouquet of pale yellow lillies and white daisies tied with blue ribbons. Rev. W. M. Averett, pastor of the Farmerville Baptist church, served as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely wedding gown of white satin and marquisette. The satin bodice with marquisette yoke was richly embroidered with braid, and the long fitted sleeves finished in points over the hands. The full gathered skirt of marquisette ended in a chapel length train. She wore a finger-tip veil of marquisette caught to a coronet. Her bouquet was of orange blossoms, carnations and tube roses.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The receiving rooms were beautifully decorated with daisies and pink radiance roses.

The bride's table was developed in white and pink, and centrally adorned with a tiered wedding cake surmounted with figurines of a bride and groom. White tapers burned in crystal candelabra on either side of the cake. The cake was encircled with southern smilax garlanded with pink roses. At one end of the table was placed a crystal punch bowl, presided over by Miss Annie Laurie Booth. Mrs. J. M. Edwards of Monroe, aunt of the bride, served the cake after the bride and groom had cut the first piece. Mrs. Jewel Davidson of Monroe, assisted in serving. Miss Elaine Canady presided at the bride's book.

The couple left later in the evening for a brief wedding trip. The bride wore a linen suit of egg shell and brown with white hat trimmed in brown and accessories of brown with corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Treadwell is a graduate of Farmerville High School and received her B. A. degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston. She served and later did graduate work at Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. She recently received her degree in library science from Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge.

Mr. Treadwell graduated from the Farmerville High School in 1939. He attended Louisiana College, Pineville, and received his B. A. degree from Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., in 1943. For the past two years he has been with the United States naval reserve and is now attending the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston, where he is a member of the Phi Chi fraternity.

The couple will make their home at 1003 19th street, Galveston, Tex., where the groom is stationed.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Edwards and son, Marion, of Monroe; Mr. H. R. Treadwell of Homer; Rev. G. C. Dennis and daughter, Miss Juanita of Georgetown; Mrs. Hopkins Hallman of Shreveport; Mrs. Clifton McIntosh of Bernice; Miss Elaine Canady, Baton Rouge; Mrs. Milo Buchanan of El Dorado; Miss Oree Martin of Winnfield; Lt. and Mrs. Jewel Davidson of Monroe.

Luncheon Honors Mrs. A. D. Tisdale

Luncheon At Cross Lake Club House Brings Federated Club Women Together

A distinct break in the summer monotony for federated club women was the luncheon at Cross Lake club house Shreveport, honoring Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, president of the Louisiana Federated Club Women. Mrs. Drew Moreland, president of Hypatia club, one of the oldest women's clubs in Shreveport, was hostess on this occasion.

The luncheon table banked with flowers and beautifully serviced, overlooked the beautiful lake. Four delicious courses, reminiscent of pre war days was served.

Mrs. Moreland introduced Mrs. Tisdale who addressed the club women on the subject of "Youth Conservation." She said in part,

"A nation has no resources as valuable as human resources. Future welfare of the nation rests on youth. They constitute a nation's greatest asset, its basic strength, and its hope. We always acknowledge this statement when it is made, but it is usually ignored. Oh, yes, we plan for conservation of livestock, forests and minerals as the most vulnerable, least expendable. Youth above all, requires conservation. Please observe this one fact. When youth presents a special difficulty as in the case of juvenile delinquency, it receives some attention, but the needs and potentialities of normal youth in a complex changing society are not given the same consideration. We think if we give them opportunity for a minimum [illegible] responsibility is discharged.

What was revealed by selective service? One out of four examined between ages of 18 and 20 rejected for medical defects with one-third of these [illegible] for psychiatric reasons, [illegible] unacceptable because [illegible]. The picture then is one of [illegible] of conservation. [illegible] for the health of its [illegible]. They are deserving [illegible].

Educational systems devised for needs of an earlier day must be geared to contemporary conditions and requirements. Must be prepared now to avoid errors of the past, help youth to meet these conditions and be strengthened for better citizenship. The need is urgent that this program of Youth Conservation reach every community.

Many studies and plans by specialized professions, public and private organizations on national and state levels are made, but their knowledge and efforts are rarely coordinated into a coherent program. Each of these operated within it's own specific and often narrow sphere upon one or two aspects of youth. Thus youth is fragmented by the separate and sometimes conflicting programs for medical, health, educational, recreational and vocational guidance. A campaign is essential to direct the attention to the lay public, especially to the numerous women's groups. It should further the coordination and articulation of many different specialists. Luncheon Honors Mrs. A. D. Tisdale

A distinct break in the summer monotony for federated club women was the luncheon at Cross Lake club house Shreveport, honoring Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, president of the Louisiana Federated Club Women. Mrs. Drew Moreland, president of Hypatia club, one of the oldest women's clubs in Shreveport, was hostess on this occasion.

The luncheon table, banked with flowers and beautifully serviced, overlooked the beautiful lake. Four delicious courses, reminiscent of pre-war days was served.

Mrs. Moreland introduced Mrs. Tisdale, who addressed the club women on the subject of "Youth Conservation." She said in part:

"A nation has no resources as valuable as human resources. Future welfare of the nation rests on youth. They constitute a nation's greatest asset, its basic strength, and its hope. We always acknowledge this statement when it is made, but it is usually ignored. Oh, yes, we plan for conservation of livestock, forests and minerals—as the most vulnerable, least expendable. Youth, above all, requires conservation. Please observe this one fact: When youth presents a special difficulty as in the case of juvenile delinquency, it receives some attention, but the needs and potentialities of normal youth in a complex changing society are not given the same consideration. We think if we give them opportunity for a minimum education our responsibility is discharged.

What was revealed by selective service? One out of four examined between ages of 18 and 20 rejected for medical defects with one-third of these refused for psychiatric reasons; 5,000,000 found unacceptable because of illiteracy. The picture then is one of human wastage and not of conservation. War has aroused the nations concern for the health of its young members. They are deserving of no less in time of peace.

Educational systems devised for needs of an earlier day must be geared to contemporary conditions and requirements. Must be prepared now to avoid errors of the past, help youth to meet these conditions and be strengthened for better citizenship. The need is urgent that this program of Youth Conservation reach every community.

Many studies and plans by specialized professions, public and private organizations on national and state levels are made, but their knowledge and efforts are rarely coordinated into a coherent program. Each of these operated within its own specific and often narrow sphere upon one or two aspects of youth. Thus youth is fragmented by the separate and sometimes conflicting programs for medical, health, educational, recreational and vocational guidance. A campaign is essential to direct the attention to the lay public, especially to the numerous women's groups. It should further the coordination and articulation of many different specialists. This would make their work more effective. Too little has been done to follow up and apply the findings and recommendations of the many studies made during the past 15 years.

Aroused by these existing and prospective conditions the General Federation of Women's Clubs has resolved to make its resources available for coping with the problem. Long interested in youth it is determined that youth conservation—the 12-21 age groups shall become a functioning program in the community, and not a subject for academic consideration.

Finally resolved to achieve full opportunity for youth under their own leadership, with minimum adult participation, for self-expression, self organization and a reasonable share in the life o fthe local community. . . . In other words the federation wants to aid youth in developing itself as stronger and better Americans.

The General Federation does not profess to be originating any new and novel program. There is no panacea, but the sifting and promotion of the best methods from out of the multitude of plans already in existence. Many books and pamphlets are available to all clubs on what is being done.

Articles of Incorporation for the Assembly of God Church was filed August 16th, 1924, with a small membership. For thirteen years the Congregation worshipped in a cheap tabernacle where the present building now stands, which was erected in 1937.

This church is rendering a great service to this community, also to the country, as many of its members, and many young men who came up through its Sunday School are serving their Country in the present war.

HEAR . . . Miss Amelia Joseph of New Kensington, Pennsylvania

The following is a brief testimony of her life and conversion:

"I was born in New Kensington, Pa., of Syrian parentage. My parents were both born and reared in Syria. My plans and ambitions were to be an Interpreter of Languages in an International Settlement. I started my linguistic career with elementary studies in four languages, but was converted and called to the ministry on the very threshold of my college career, which changed my plans completely. I then entered Central Bible Institute, Springfield, Mo., and after three years of training in this institution I spent eighteen months in Louisiana where I had my first introduction to full time ministry. Was licensed to preach by the Louisiana District Council of the Assemblies of God in 1938, since then have preached in twenty states covering a distance of seventy-five thousand miles."

We are happy to have Miss Joseph for this revival and invite you to hear her each night at 7:45 o'clock.

TIGERS, A'S IN 24-INNING TIE

Teams Tie 39-Year-Old American League Record In 1-1 Deadlock

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics and the Detroit Tigers tied a 39-year-old American League endurance record as they battled almost five hours through 24 innings without any decision reached.

Umpire Bill Summers called the game at the end of the 24th inning with the score tied 1-1.

The Athletics and the Boston Red Sox in 1906 played 24 innings to set an American League record which has never been equalled or broken. Until today it was the longest major league game of this season and came within two innings of tying the all-time record.

It was the longest major league game of this season and came within two innings of tying the all-time major mark of 26 innings in 1920 by Brooklyn and Boston of the Senior Loop.

Detroit's Les Mueller, a right hander with a fast ball who was recently discharged from the army, outlasted [illegible] and his second of the season against eight setbacks today, gaining an easy 12-3 triumph over the Chicago White Sox as the New York Yankees, paced by three homers, gathered 13 hits off two Sox hurlers.

Nick Etten pounded out a grand slam homer in the second inning to climax a five run assault against starter Earl Caldwell. Bud Metheny and Hershel Martin also hit round trippers in the fifth.

Caldwell dropped his fourth game against three victories.

DERRINGER HURLS CUBS TO VICTORY

Bruins Maintain Pace In National Loop With 5-3 Win Over Phils

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—Veteran Paul Derringer, hospitalized with influenza earlier this week, went back to the mound today and turned in one of his best performances of the season as he pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 victory over Philadelphia.

Derringer stopped the last-place Phils with two hits for seventh innings and, until Vance Dinges doubled in the sixth, only two balls had been hit out of the infield.

Derringer gave up but six hits as he won his tenth victory of the year. The victory temporarily boosted the Cubs' National league lead to four games.

ON MAT CARD

Don Evans (above), heavyweight wrestler of Buffalo, N. Y., appears at Gus Kallio's Arena here Thursday night on a card in which heavyweight grapplers return to Monroe to supersede the light-heavies who have dominated the mat scene here for the past half dozen years. Evans will meet Angelo Savoldi in the semifinal event of a card featuring the main event brawl between Roy Graham, Texas cowboy, and Ellis Bashara, well known ex-Oklahoma U football star.

Bashara Meets Graham And Evans Tackles Savoldi On Card This Week

Heavyweight wrestling comes back to Monroe this week, replacing the light-heavies who have dominated catch-as-catch-can in the Twin Cities since Gus Kallio, former middleweight champion, turned to promoting here in 1939.

Kallio announced last night that his card for Thursday night will include Ellis Bashara, 230-pound former University of Oklahoma football and wrestling star; Roy Graham, powerful cowboy grappler of Del Rio, Tex.; Don Evans, clever battler of Buffalo, N. Y.; and Angelo Savoldi, a New York sensation who numbers among his victims such nationally known heavies as the Dusek brothers.

Main event of the card will send Bashara, only battler of the trio who has previously displayed his talents before local fans, against Graham, a 240-pounder who stands six feet tall, two inches taller than the villainous Bashara. The match will have a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win.

LEWIS RETURNS TO WASHINGTON CLUB

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Buddy Lewis, a star of prewar days, returned to the Washington Senators today.

Discharged from the army air transport command yesterday at Fort Bragg, N. C., Lewis reported to owner Clark Griffith this morning. Within an hour, he donned his old No. 2 uniform.

Lewis, a .300 hitter, will be 29 years old in August, now weighs 185 pounds compared to 170 before he entered service, and probably will require a week of batting practice and general conditioning before he breaks into the Senators' outfield.

CHICAGO TOURNEY DRAWS BIG FIELD

Nelson And Snead To Return To Golfing Wars In Rich Tournament

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—Everybody wants to get into the $60,000 Tam O'Shanter course next week and that includes those ailing warriors—Byron Nelson and Sammy Snead—not to mention long inactive Lt. Ben Hogan of the army air forces.

The lush all-American tournament, golfdom's richest meet, is expected to magically heal Nelson, who skipped the current St. Paul Open to rest a wrenched back, and Snead, nursing a fractured hand since mid-June.

Defending Champion Nelson, with $31,600 war bond winnings and nine straight tourney triumphs already chalked up this year, and some 139 envious colleagues will shoot for the $13,600 (war bond value) winner's slice of the all-American Open.

TIGERS, A'S IN 24-INNING TIE

Teams Tie 39-Year-Old American League Record In 1-1 Deadlock

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics and the Detroit Tigers tied a 39-year-old American League endurance record as they battled almost five hours through 24 innings without any decision reached.

Umpire Bill Sommers called the game at the end of the 24th inning with the score tied 1-1.

The Athletics and the Boston Red Sox in 1906 played 24 innings to set an American League record which has never been equalled or broken. Until today it was the longest major league game of this season and came within two innings of tying the all-time record.

It was the longest major league game of this season and came within two innings of tying the all-time major mark of 26 innings in 1920 by Brooklyn and Boston of the Senior Loop.

Detroit's Les Mueller, a right hander with a fast ball who was recently discharged from the army, outlasted three other pitchers used in the game. He pitched 19 and two-thirds innings and was relieved by Paul (Dizzy) Trout after he had walked two men.

Russ Christopher, seeking his 12th victory, hurled 13 innings for the A's and was followed by Jittery Joe Berry.

Umpire Sommers called the game on account of darkness.

NATS WHIP INDIANS

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Alex Carrasquel came to the rescue of the Washington Senators today both on the mound and at bat in a 7-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

The big angular Venezuelan relieved Johnny Niggeling after Cleveland scored four runs in the second inning and hurled 7 1/3 innings of shutout ball to keep the Senators on the heels of the leading Detroit Tigers.

With the score tied at 4-4 in Washington's half of the fifth and loaded, Carrasquel lashed a two-run single to center, routing Lefty Al Smith, Cleveland's starting hurler.

BROWNS DOWN RED SOX

BOSTON, July 21.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns sewed up the game in the first inning today with three runs on one hit as they beat the Boston Red Sox 4 to 1 and chalked up their fifth straight victory.

Pitcher Jim Wilson went all the way for the Red Sox, allowing only seven hits, but the damage was done before the smoke cleared in the first.

The only Boston run came in the first. After Lake walked and with two out, Bob Johnson doubled off the wall, bringing the shortstop home.

ESLER WITHDRAWS SO MISSIONS IDLE

Selman To Play Winner Of Livingston-Lake Charles Tilt Today

BATON ROUGE, La., July 22.—(Special)—Withdrawal of Esler Field's team Friday left the Selman Field Missions idle today as the state semi-pro tournament got under way here.

The Monroe league-leaders were to have played Esler this afternoon, but the forfeit stalled them until Sunday afternoon, when they will tackle the winner of a game tonight between Camp Livingston's Blues and Lake Charles airbase.

If they take the Lake Charles contest, the Blues will be the team to beat for the Missions who go into the meet as favorites. The Camp Livingston nine started on the right foot Friday with a shutout over Standard Motor semi-pros of Baton Rouge, 3-0, while the Missions scouted the game.

Mission Manager Buddy Blair announced tonight that his team will be ready for anything tomorrow. They went through strenuous workouts this afternoon in L. S. U. park.

Blair was undecided about his starting hurler for Sunday, but said tonight he had at least four pitchers ready to go. One of this quartet is a newcomer, Lou Kretloff, who with Danny Doyle, former catcher for the Boston Red Sox, joined the team recently. Both probably will see action in tournament games.

Front-line pitchers expected to do early mound work for the Missions are regulars Kirby Jones, Red Murry, Dub Mattis, Tom Perry, former Cotton States League southpaw, who recently joined the Selman nine, is also here for duty.

DERRINGER HURLS CUBS TO VICTORY

Bruins Maintain Pace In National Loop With 5-3 Win Over Phils

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)— Veteran Paul Derringer, hospitalized with influenza earlier this week, went back to the mound today and turned in one of his best performances of the season as he pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 victory over Philadelphia.

Derringer stopped the last-place Phils with two hits for seventh innings, and, until Vance Dinges doubled in the sixth, only two balls had been hit out of the infield.

Derringer gave up but six hits as he won his tenth victory of the year. The victory temporarily boosted the Cubs' National league lead to four games.

ON MAT CARD

Don Evans (above), heavyweight wrestler of Buffalo, N. Y., appears at Gus Kallio's Arena here Thursday night on a card in which heavyweight grapplers return to Monroe to supersede the light-heavies who have dominated the mat scene here for the past half dozen years. Evans will meet Angelo Savoldi in the semi-final event of a card featuring the main event brawl between Roy Graham, Texas cowboy, and Ellis Bashara, well known ex-Oklahoma U. football star.

MANILA IS SEEKING TOURING BASEBALL

MANILA, July 21.—(AP)—This sports-hungry army headquarters hopefully welcomed Navy Secretary Forrestal's request for a world champion baseball tour, and army officials said the series could be staged here.

Athletic officers of the base command said Rizal Stadium would be in top condition. The stadium, which Babe Ruth and other touring big leaguers inaugurated in 1935, now is used for service baseball, softball, football and soccer.

Officers said if the baseball champions do visit Manila, every effort will be made to insure opportunities for men in all branches of the service to see the games.

The average Sunday baseball crowd here is 10,000 servicemen and several hundred Filipinos.

Several former major and minor league players and numerous semi-pros now are playing in Manila League games, and a strong all-star team could be formed to oppose the champions.

DODSON LEADS IN ST. PAUL TOURNEY

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 21.—(AP)—Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, the nonchalant "clown prince" of professional golfers, continued to lead qualifiers at the end of the second round of play in the St. Paul open today.

Dodson carded a 70 today which, with his Friday 67, gave him a 137 total for the two days. Four pros with 139 totals pressed close on his heels.

They were Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kans., with a 71 today and a previous 68; Ky Laffoon of Chicago, who cut one stroke off his opening round 70; Sgt. E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of Wright Field, Ohio, who chopped three strokes off his earlier 71, and Virgil Shreeve of San Francisco, Calif., down one stroke from a 70 on Friday.

Harold "Jug" McSpaden, pre-tourney favorite matched his opening 72 for a 144, fairly well down the list of the 64 qualifiers who will start out Sunday on the final 36-hole grind.

WOODCOCK IS LATEST BRITISH HEAVYWEIGHT

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)— Bruce Woodcock, Britain's new heavyweight boxing champion, is going to get married and return to his railroading job while his managers worry about his ring future.

The big 24-year-old slugger, who is being hailed by London critics as the most promising English heavyweight since Tommy Farr, is looking forward to a possible trip to the United States and cracks at Billy Conn and Joe Louis after they get out of the service.

But the London opinion is that Woodcock, who won his title by knocking out Jack London in six rounds Tuesday, will not be rushed into the American spotlight until he acquires a lot more experience in European rings.

While Woodcock's British market for big money bouts appears limited at present, Promoter Jack Solomons already has announced a fight for September. There is some talk the opponent may be Arturo Godoy, Chilean who twice lost to Louis in title bouts. Eddie Phillips, former British light-heavyweight king, and London also are being mentioned.

HEAVIES RETURN TO ARENA HERE

Bashara Meets Graham And Evans Tackles Savoldi On Card This Week

Heavyweight wrestling comes back to Monroe this week, replacing the light-heavies who have dominated catch-as-catch-can in the Twin Cities since Gus Kallio, former middleweight champion, turned to promoting here in 1939.

Kallio announced last night that his card for Thursday night will include Ellis Bashara, 230-pound former University of Oklahoma football and wrestling star; Roy Graham, powerful cowboy grappler of Del Rio, Tex.; Don Evans, clever battler of Buffalo, N. Y.; and Angelo Savoldi, a New York sensation who numbers among his victims such nationally known heavies as the Dusek brothers.

Main event of the card will send Bashara, only battler of the trio who has previously displayed his talents before local fans, against Graham, a 240-pounder who stands six feet tall, two inches taller than the villainous Bashara. The match will have a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win.

In the semi-final, which opens the show at 8:30 o'clock, will be Evans, who weighs 218, and Savoldi, 210. Their match will be over an hour time limit route, also two falls to win.

The show this week will mark the end of the local "wrestling holiday" that was declared by Kallio following his last card with light heavyweights on June 28. He had planned to extend the "vacation" to the middle of August, but decided on the earlier return at the "popular request" of his customers.

During the vacation Promoter Kallio spent several days visiting heavyweight wrestling centers in the southwest and middle west. He had decided, he revealed, that new faces were needed to stimulate wrestling locally. The appearance of the same light-heavy talent in scrambled array week after week was growing monotonous, but Kallio feels the change to the big boys will prove stimulating.

The new faces in the mat game here will also include the referee. Allen Corbin, 145-pound policeman, handled the light-heavies for the past several months. Corbin is a good little man and did a good job with slighter built light-heavies, but even then he was a bit light even for the task no other local men had attempted with any success with the exception of Aldin "Butch" Martin who quite the ring after suffering a leg injury in an accident, and Bill Barney, the West Monroe boy, who is away in the navy.

Kallio said he was negotiating for the services of a heavyweight referee of Shreveport to handle the matches Thursday.

PLAYER WHO BATTED BROWNS TO TRIUMPH RETURNS TO LINEUP

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—(AP)— Chet Laabs, the man who supplied the punch that pushed the St. Louis Browns into their first pennant on the final day of the 1944 season, is coming back to the American League champions.

The Browns' front office announced today that Laabs has been released from his Detroit war job and will join the club when it returns from the current road trip.

The stocky outfielder played only 66 games for the Browns last year and in 65 of them he was just another guy, one of the weakest on a weak-hitting team.

Then came Sunday, Oct. 1. The Browns were meeting the New York Yankees whom they had defeated three straight times. At Detroit the Tigers were meeting the last-place Washington Senators. The American League race hinged in the balance. To take the flag the Browns had to win, and the Tigers had to lose, which they did.

But in St. Louis, the Browns were having an awful time with the Yanks. The New Yorkers had a 2-run lead in the third. Mike Kreevich started the fourth for the Browns with a single. Up came Laabs. There were audible groans from the record crowd of 35,518. Laabs had not been hitting. Mel Queen pitched, Laabs connected, and the ball landed in the left field bleachers. The score was tied.

Came the fifth inning. With two out Kreevich singled. Laabs came up, this time to applause. The Tiger cast-off parked another one in the bleachers and the frenzied fans tried to tear the park apart.

By then Sig Jakucki had the subdued Yankees eating out of his hand. Vernon Stephens added a homer in the eighth and the Browns had finally reached the payoff station after 43 seasons.

LEWIS RETURNS TO WASHINGTON CLUB

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Buddy Lewis, a star of prewar days, returned to the Washington Senators today.

Discharged from the army air transport command yesterday at Fort Bragg, N. C., Lewis reported to owner Clark Griffith this morning. Within an hour, he donned his old No. 2 uniform.

Lewis, a .300 hitter, will be 29 years old in August, now weighs 185 pounds compared to 170 before he entered service, and probably will require a week of batting practice and general conditioning before he breaks into the Senators' outfield.

DEVALUE WINNER OF CHICAGO RACE

Outsider Whips Favored Thumbs Up In Rich Stars And Stripes

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—Devalue, a 7-year-old thoroughbred owned by a Chicago housewife, scored a victory in Arlington's $58,100 stars and stripes handicap at Washington Park by defeating the 3 to 5 favorite, Thumbs Up, by a nose.

The astonishing victory stunned a crowd of 25,000 spectators.

The winner is owned by Mrs. James Nemecek.

Devalue had won only $5,850 in one victory out of six starts this season, compared to the lump of $110,245 earned by Thumbs Up, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap three weeks ago. Devalue never before had won an important stake.

Devalue, trailing last in the field of ten on the back stretch, made his winning move running down the middle of the track right at the end of the race.

It was close enough to require a photo of the finish, but Devalue's margin was unmistakable.

George (The Iceman) Woolf, riding Thumbs Up, had centered most of his attention on Sirde, which was running along the rail and it may be that he did not see the winner moving up until it was too late.

Devalue carried only 106 pounds against the 130 with which Thumbs Up was burdened.

Devalue, ridden by the veteran Steve Brooks, ran the mile and a furlong in 1:51 3/5.

TIGER MASCOT TAKEN TO MATE AT JACKON

BATON ROUGE, La., July 21.—(AP)—Mike, Louisiana State University's Tiger mascot, left here this morning for Jackson, Miss., where a mate awaited him.

L. S. U. students are hopeful that Mike will become a papa for he is getting old as Tigers go and a new mascot may be needed.

Under an agreement with the Jackson Zoo the university will get one of the Cubs if more than one is born.

An official welcome was planned in Jackson for the mascot.

Mike will be housed in the Jackson Zoo during his stay there and is to return here in time for the L. S. U. football games.

CHICAGO TOURNEY DRAWS BIG FIELD

Nelson And Snead To Return To Golfing Wars In Rich Tournament

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—Everybody wants to get into the $60,000 Tam O'Shanter course next week and that includes those ailing warriors—Byron Nelson and Sammy Snead—not to mention long inactive Lt. Ben Hogan of the army air forces.

The lush all-American tournament, golfdom's richest meet, is expected to magically heal Nelson, who skipped the current St. Paul Open to rest a wrenched back, and Snead, nursing a fractured hand since mid-June.

Defending Champion Nelson, with $31,600 war bond winnings and nine straight tourney triumphs already chalked up this year, and some 139 envious colleagues will shoot for the $13,600 (war bond value) winner's slice of the all-American Open.

The 72-hole, medal play open from Thursday through Sunday is the main act in a three-ring circus which Promoter George S. May has developed into golf's greatest spectacle. The show also includes an all-American amateur meet and an all-American women's open, running concurrently with the main event.

The return of Lieutenant Hogan from the inactive ranks and Snead's test of a fractured hand should give Nelson a little snappier competition than he faced in roaring off with the Montreal Open, the Philadelphia Open, the Chicago Victory National, and P. G. A. championship since the start of the summer tour.

Also anxious to trip the great Byron will be such stars as Harold (Jug) McSpaden, runner-up to Nelson this year in winnings with $17,200; Sam Byrd, who lost to Nelson in the finals of the P. G. A.; Claude Harmon, Tony Penna, Johnny Bulla, Vic Ghezzi, Johnny Revolta, Clarence Doser, Gene Sarazen, Jimmy Hines, Jimmy Thompson, Dutch Harrison, Denny Shute, Craig Wood, Dale Morey, Bill Kaiser, Tony Manero, and the old Haig, Walter Hagen.

HEALTHY MAN IS EAGER TO MARRY

Owns Big Farm, Cattle, Buildings, Doesn't Drink Or Swear

WASHINGTON, July 21. —(AP)— There's a good, strong, healthy man with average looks in northern Wisconsin who's an eager beaver for matrimony—but he can't find any takers.

So he wrote his congressman.

The nonplused lawmaker, inexperienced in finding wives for constituents, made public the letter today. He asked that his name not be divulged "because I don't want to become an advice-to-the-lovelorn editor."

The wifeless man, who said he lived in Grantsburg, Wis., wrote:

"This is out of your line, but I'm looking for a wife—and it's stymied me. It's impossible for me to get around much, as I have a 5-year-old boy, 30 head of cattle and calves to look after, own 600 acres of sandy land, two sets of buildings and have a nice house.

"I have tried matrimonial clubs and papers—but they are after the mazuma, or you get a list of women who want city life.

"I have been places and done things and am satisfied to live here in the flora and fauna of northern Wisconsin—although some find fault, as they would in paradise.

"I can furnish character and bank references. I am 43 years old, and am as strong and healthy as they come. I don't use tobacco or liquor, don't swear, gamble or chase around and am average for looks.

"My boy is also strong and healthy. I was offered one grand for him but he is not for sale—as money means nothing to me.

"I read where there were 2,300,000 women between the ages of 20 and 34 without a Chinaman's chance of marrying. If that is so, where are they? They are scarce as hen's teeth here.

"This is the hardest job I've ever tackled.

"I tried to get an ad in my hometown paper, but they wouldn't take it."

splendid little institution and have the satisfaction to know that he anticipated such a great need especially for under-privileged people.

But they are not the beneficiaries alone. Captain Cooley has been paying for part of the life insurance for every person in Ouachita parish.

This again your health director calls religion, practical and applied religion. "By their works ye shall know them."

A new day is dawning for the detection of tuberculosis, so that an x-ray picture will be available for every one soon after the war is over.

But as we look to "tomorrow" and a new x-ray method sponsored by the government which bring some means of detection within the reach of every man, woman and child in the United States, we must also see that there are ways and means provided to nurse and house these cases.

It is said that the U. S. Public Health Service has received a sum of money to establish a yearly check-up throughout the country.

The secret of mass protection against the "white plague" is a new device for taking miniature x-ray photographs of the lung.

These x-rays automatically turn out perfect, no matter how thin or fat, young or old, the subject may be.

The machine can run steadily all day, photographing six people a minute without a single failure.

Every person has a different resistance to x-ray. Using the cumbersome full sized films of the past, even the most skillful technician could only guess at the right length of exposure.

The high speed x-ray method uses a new electric eye device called the "phototimer" placed close beside the film and receiving a portion of the rays that pass through the patient. When just enough exposure has been made, the timer shuts off the apparatus, and the film winds on for the next.

This machine is built as a portable unit; the machine can take perfect pictures of 1,000 chests a day, recording them on moviefilm which can later be enlarged, analyzed and interpreted by a physician.

Science has devised such a machine to be available, soon after the war.

The federal government and the individual states should begin to make plans now for tomorrow, to be able to house in sanatorium such cases as require medical and surgical care, and nursing and convalescent homes for such other cases as need the proper diet and rest.

My purpose is to keep you informed, to interpret our present needs and to forecast future needs.

and development totaling about $2,000,000,000.

Both the stabilization and bank loans will be made under international auspices, but the Russians know as well as anyone else that the United States will make the largest individual contribution to each fund.

The $2,000,000,000 immediately available to the Russians, plus the amounts they will get later, represents a much smaller total than the Soviets originally asked.

Reports were that they sought a $10,000,000,000 loan here originally, and trimmed that request later to $6,000,000,000. The Russian aid program, however, at least matches if it does not exceed that for Great Britain.

The British reportedly will get $2,000,000,000 of the $4,400,000,000 lend-lease appropriation for this year.

It is understood that Russian lend-lease consists largely of food and clothing, all of which is supposed to be channeled to the Siberian area where the presence of Soviet armies is tying down Japanese troops in Manchuria. These shipments are traveling past the Japanese islands unmolested in lend-lease ships flying the Soviet flag.

JAPAN TOLD

ed to explain unconditional surrender to the Americans as well as the Japanese.

Describing the "unconditional surrender" peace formula as "a humanitarian gesture of great constructive value," the Japanese-speaking captain called surrender "a time-honored formula by which hostilities are terminated."

If Japan "should initiate the cessation of hostilities without further delay," he said, "it may be assumed that it will be the United States which will enforce the formula and ensure the peace."

"As you know," the captain continued, "the Atlantic Charter and the Cairo declarations are the sources of our policy, and both begin with the categorical statement that we seek no territorial aggrandizement in our war against Japan. Are the leaders of Japan really so short-sighted that they cannot see the possible complications which they may have to face if they fail to act, and act promptly?"

Captain Zacharias did not indicate what other powers might have a voice should the Japanese fail to surrender "without further delay" or what the "possible complications" might be.

He said there are still "some influential people" in this country "who would not like to see the destruction of Japan," and added:

"But our patience, too, has its limits, and it is rapidly running out. Your continued refusal to heed the sound and sober advice of counselors will convince even the greatest humanitarian among us that the destruction of everything which supports the Japanese war potential is the only way to terminate the war.

"Your opportunity to think over these facts is rapidly passing. As soon as our redeployment is completed, this opportunity will be lost to Japan—and as you know, it will be lost forever. The war will then be decided by our superior arms—in Japan."

Captain Zacharias began studying Japanese while attache to the American embassy in Tokyo in 1920. He returned there in 1923 as acting naval attache.

In this war he has participated in many actions in the Pacific, his commands including the battleship New Mexico. He now is on special duty with the Commander in Chief, United States fleet, and with OWI.

and air power were unable "to grapple" with Allied might beyond the confines of the homeland and that the final battle must be fought there.

However, this leader, Lt. Gen. Reikichi Tada, president of the Japanese board of technology, claimed in a Domei news agency dispatch recorded by the Federal Communications Commission that a new secret weapon would insure victory in the showdown invasion battle.

The Japanese also announced that they now had all the scrap iron they needed, from cities damaged by bombs and shells, to build weapons and fortifications.

Japan's government, exercising its recently acquired decree power, ordered the country's 400,000 communications workers mobilized into an "actual fighting corps" for the "coming main-land" battle.

General Tada declared that the secret weapon was "new in every sense of the word" and that, when operated by the "special attack" suicide corps, would have a "double sure hit, sure death" effectiveness.

Chennault, who has announced he expects to retire from the army after returning to the United States, was asked if he contemplated "retiring from the present war."

"That will depend, of course, on my superiors," Chennault said. "I expect to return to the United States and a further course of action on my part will be in accordance with the orders I receive."

Chennault said he had not been offered a post with the Chinese government.

One correspondent, sensing Chennault's affection for a black dachshund named Joe that has been all over China in Chennault's plane, asked if he was taking Joe back to Texas or Louisiana, where Chennault formerly lived. Chennault replied he could not say where he was going.

"But where I go, that dog will go!" the general added.

The warrant was sworn out by Sprague, who charged Pryor had attacked him with a butcher knife in one hand and a paring knife in the other when he sought to question him about the knives. It was declared that a young woman employe of the store had seen Pryor taking knives from a display counter in the store and reported the incident to Sprague, who followed the man out the rear door of the store to Harrison street.

Sprague told police that when he stopped Pryor to question him the latter drew two knives and declared, "I'll kill you!" Sprague said he managed to evade the knives, suffering only a small cut on one hand and hit Pryor once.

Police Captain J. M. Bailey and Officer E. L. Walker, who arrived on the scene before Pryor was rushed to the hospital, said they recovered three knives from Pryor's shirt bosom and up one sleeve. They said he was still holding one knife in his hand and a fifth knife was lying beside him.

The body was taken to Hale Funeral Home, but funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

"The United States and every other member of the organization will be just as free after it signs and becomes a member as it was before," he added.

Japan certainly still rated as Third naval power in the world, surpassed only by Britain and the United States. After Pearl Harbor she undoubtedly stood second in sea power afloat yet today she is incapable of defending her own shore line cities from naval as well as air attack.

The long or even short range effect of that fact on the Japanese public will to continue the useless fight is yet to be assessed. Its effect on Russo-Japanese relations already strained by Moscow denunciation of the otherwise self perpetuating Russo-Japanese peace pact is also yet to be learned.

HEALTHY MAN IS EAGER TO MARRY

Owns Big Farm, Cattle, Buildings, Doesn't Drink Or Swear

WASHINGTON, July 21. — (AP) — There's a good, strong, healthy man with average looks in northern Wisconsin who's an eager beaver for matrimony—but he can't find any takers.

So he wrote his congressman.

The nonplussed lawmaker, inexperienced in finding wives for constituents, made public the letter today. He asked that his name not be divulged "because I don't want to become an advice-to-the-lovelorn editor."

The wifeless man, who said he lived in Grantsburg, Wis., wrote:

"This is out of your line, but I'm looking for a wife—and it's stymied me. It's impossible for me to get around much, as I have a 5-year-old boy, 30 head of cattle and calves to look after, own 600 acres of sandy land, two sets of buildings and have a nice house.

"I have tried matrimonial clubs and papers—but they are after the mazuma, or you get a list of women who want city life.

"I have been places and done things and am satisfied to live here in the flora and fauna of northern Wisconsin—although some find fault, as they would in paradise.

"I can furnish character and bank references. I am 43 years old, and am as strong and healthy as they come. I don't use tobacco or liquor, don't swear, gamble or chase around and am average for looks.

"My boy is also strong and healthy. I was offered one grand for him but he is not for sale—as money means nothing to me.

"I read where there were 2,300,000 women between the ages of 20 and 34 without a Chinaman's chance of marrying. If that is so, where are they? They are scarce as hen's teeth here.

"This is the hardest job I've ever tackled.

"I tried to get an ad in my hometown paper, but they wouldn't take it."

splendid little institution and have the satisfaction to know that he anticipated such a great need especially for under-privileged people.

But they are not the beneficiaries alone. Captain Cooley has been paying for part of the life insurance for every person in Ouachita parish.

This again your health director calls religion, practical and applied religion.

"By their works ye shall know them."

A new day is dawning for the detection of tuberculosis, so that an x-ray picture will be available for every one soon after the war is over.

But as we look to "tomorrow" and a new x-ray method sponsored by the government which bring some means of detection within the reach of every man, woman and child in the United States, we must also see that there are ways and means provided to nurse and house these cases.

It is said that the U. S. Public Health Service has received a sum of money to establish a yearly check-up throughout the country.

The secret of mass protection against the "white plague" is a new device for taking minature x-ray photographs of the lung.

These x-rays automatically turn out perfect, no matter how thin or fat, young or old, the subject may be.

The machine can run steadily all day, photographing six people a minute without a single failure.

Every person has a different resistance to x-ray. Using the cumbersome full sized films of the past, even the most skillful technician could only guess at the right length of exposure.

The high speed x-ray method uses a new electric eye device called the "phototimer" placed close beside the film and receiving a portion of the rays that pass through the patient. When just enough exposure has been made, the timer shuts off the aparatus, and the film winds on for the next.

This machine is built as a portable unit; the machine can take perfect pictures of 1,000 chests aday, recording them on moviefilm which can later be enlarged, analyzed and interpreted by a physician.

Science has devised such a machine to be available, soon after the war.

The federal government and the individual states should begin to make plans now for tomorrow, to be able to house in sanatoriam such cases as require medical and surgical care, and nursing and convalescent homes for such other cases as need the proper diet and rest.

My purpose is to keep you informed, to interpret our present needs and to forecast future needs.

Health Center, Phone 6100.

and development totaling about $2,000,000,000.

Both the stabilization and bank loans wil be made under international auspices, but the Russians know as well as anyone else that the United States will make the largest individual contribution to each fund.

The $2,000,000,000 immediately available to the Russians, plus the amounts they will get later, represents a much smaller total than the Soviets originally asked.

Reports were that they sought a $10,000,000,000 loan here originally, and trimmed that request later to $6,000,000,000. The Russian aid program, however, at least matches if it does not exceed that for Great Britain.

The British reportedly will get $2,000,000,000 of the $4,400,000,000 lend-lease appropriation for this year.

It is understood that Russian lend-lease consists largely of food and clothing, all of which is supposed to be channeled to the Siberian area where the presence of Soviet armies is tying down Japanese troops in Manchuria. These shipments are traveling past the Japanese islands unmolested in lend-lease ships flying the Soviet flag.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

ed to explain unconditional surrender to the Americans, as well as the Japanese.

Describing the "unconditional surrender" peace formula as "a humanitarian gesture of great constructive value," the Japanese-speaking captain called surrender "a time-honored formula by which hostilities are terminated."

If Japan "should initiate the cessation of hostilities without further delay," he said, "it may be assumed that it will be the United States which will enforce the formula and ensure the peace."

"As you know," the captain continued, "the Atlantic Charter and the Cairo declarations are the sources of our policy, and both begin with the categorical statement that we seek no territorial aggrandizement in our war against Japan. Are the leaders of Japan really so short-sighted that they cannot see the possible complications which they may have to face if they fail to act, and act promptly?"

Captain Zacharias did not indicate what other powers might have a voice should the Japanese fail to surrender "without further delay," or what the "possible complications" might be.

He said there are still "some influential people" in this country "who would not like to see the destruction of Japan," and added:

"But our patience, too, has its limits, and it is rapidly running out. Your continued refusal to heed the sound and sober advice of counselors will convince even the greatest humanitarian among us that the destruction of everything which supports the Japanese war potential is the only way to terminate the war.

"Your opportunity to think over these facts is rapidly passing. As soon as our redeployment is completed, this opportunity will be lost to Japan—and as you know, it will be lost forever. The war will then be decided by our superior arms—in Japan."

Captain Zacharias began studying Japanese while attache to the American embassy in Tokyo in 1920. He returned there in 1928 as acting naval attache.

In this war he has participated in many actions in the Pacific, his commands including the battleship New Mexico. He now is on special duty with the Commander in Chief, United States fleet, and with OWI.

and air power were unable "to grapple" with Allied might beyond the confines of the homeland and that the final battle must be fought there.

However, this leader, Lt. Gen. Reikichi Tada, president of the Japanese board of technology, claimed in a Domei news agency dispatch recorded by the Federal Communications Commission that a new secret weapon would insure victory in the showdown invasion battle.

The Japanese also announced that they now had all the scrap iron they needed, from cities damaged by bombs and shells, to build weapons and fortifications.

Japan's government, exercising its recently acquired decree power, ordered the country's 400,000 communications workers mobilized into an "actual fighting corps" for the "coming main-land" battle.

General Tada declared that the secret weapon was "new in every sense of the word" and that, when operated by the "special attack" suicide corps, would have a "double sure hit, sure death" effectiveness.

look around and find some useful work to do."

Chennault, who has announced he expects to retire from the army after returning to the United States, was asked if he contemplated "retiring from the present war."

"That will depend, of course, on my superiors," Chennault said. "I expect to return to the United States, and a further course of action on my part will be in accordance with the orders I receive."

Chennault said he had not been offered a post with the Chinese government.

One correspondent, sensing Chennault's affection for a black dachshund named Joe that has been all over China in Chennault's plane, asked if he was taking Joe back to Texas or Louisiana, where Chennault formerly lived. Chennault replied he could not say where he was going.

"But where I go, that dog will go," the general added.

from Sears, Roebuck and drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon.

The warrant was sworn out by Sprague, who charged Pryor had attacked him with a butcher knife in one hand and a paring knife in the other when he sought to question him about the knives. It was declared that a young woman employe of the store had seen Pryor taking knives from a display counter in the store and reported the incident to Sprague, who followed the man out the rear door of the store to Harrison street.

Sprague told police that when he stopped Pryor to question him the latter drew two knives and declared, "I'll kill you." Sprague said he managed to evade the knives, suffering only a small cut on one hand, and hit Pryor once.

Police Captain J. M. Busby and Officer E. L. Walker, who arrived on the scene before Pryor was rushed to the hospital, said they recovered three knives from Pryor's shirt bosom and up one sleeve. They said he was still holding one knife in his hand and a fifth knife was lying beside him.

The body was taken to Hall Funeral Home, but funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

they had concluded about the I. C. C. decision:

Thomas L. Bailey, Mississippi—"the finding of the Interstate Commerce Commission establishes the principles of equality in class rates (manufactured articles) and opens the door of opportunity for the south and west."

James H. Davis, Louisiana—"I think the south will inevitably expand industrially as a result of the recent decision of the I. C. C. in the class rate case."

Ben T. Laney, Arkansas—"With the vast reservoir of trained workers developed during the war and increased local capital, there is no question but that southern industry will expand now that we are about to gain equality of freight rates."

With conclusion of business sessions, the governors left by boat late today for a cruise in Mobile bay. They will return home tomorrow.

If the United States is going into the organization, he decared, it should be with the understanding that this country surrenders none of its freedoms.

Austin said the resolution accepts no obligation except contributing to the fund.

"The United States and every other member of this organization will be just as free after it signs and becomes a member as it was before," he added.

Japan certainly still rated as Third naval power in the world, surpassed only by Britain and the United States. After Pearl Harbo she undoubtedly stood second in sea power afloat yet today she is incapable of defending her own shore line cities from naval as well as air attac'.

The long or even short range effect of that fact on the Japaneses public will to continue the useless fight is yet to be assessed. Its effect on Russo-Japanese relations already strained by Moscow denunciation of the otherwise self perpetuating Russo-Japanese peace pact is also yet to be learned.

BLOOD ARTILLERY

Blood plasma has been delivered to American soldiers throughout the world via all sorts of vehicles and methods. The strangest one, however, is that which was recently revealed—the firing of blood plasma contained in artillery shells to Allied troops cut off by Nazis in the European theater of war.

LT. BURNETT IS KILLED IN PLANE

Brother of Monroe And West Monroe Residents Victim Of Crash

Lt. John Dempsey Burnett, 25, a jet pilot in the army air force and a graduate of Northeast Junior College of L. S. U. here, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon at 5:25 o'clock in a plane accident over Matagorda Isle while on his last gunnery training flight out of Foster Field, Victoria, Tex., where he was stationed.

He was a brother of Mrs. F. M. Durham, Edgewater Gardens, Monroe, and J. R. Burnett, West Monroe, who is connected with the Louisiana Power and Light Company.

Lt. Burnett made his home here for some time with his sister and graduated from Northeast Junior College in 1939. Later he attended Mississippi State where he graduated in 1941. He entered service in August, 1941, received his commission at Turner Field, April, 1942, and he spent five months out of the states on Trinidad. He had been expecting an assignment in the Pacific soon.

Details of the accident were not known by relatives here last night. The body will leave Foster Field today for Homer where it is expected to arrive Monday. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night, but services are expected to be held some time Tuesday at Homer where his father lives.

Lt. Burnett is survived by his father, J. E. Burnett; four sisters, Mrs. J. L. Moss and Mrs. Roy Ussery, Homer, Mrs. F. F. Robinson, Springhill, and Mrs. Durham, Monroe; and one brother, J. R. Burnett, West Monroe.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—Elmer Caffrey, a returned war veteran who is playing for the Albany Senators in the Eastern League, broke into the lineup the other night just in time to get into that 19-13 game Scranton won from Albany. . . . Caffrey went to the plate three times against three different pitchers in one inning, when the Senators scored 14 runs, and drew a walk and two hits. . . , by that time he probably wished he was back in the front lines. . . . From Calcutta "Majah" Bob Neyland, former Tennessee grid coach, comments that he probably is the only football coach who hasn't had an offer to work in one of the new pro leagues. . . . Just give them time. . . . Lloyd Brazil turned up for grid practice at Central Michigan College the other day and Coach Ron Finch is sorry to say he is no relation to the U. of Detroit athletic director.

Moore And Moore

For three years of competition in the Panama Canal Zone Mickey Harris, former Red Sox flinger, never succeeded in fanning ex-Cardinal Terry Moore. . . . Recently Mickey pitched for Balboa, champions of the Canal Zone League, in a 16-inning tussle against an all star squad that included Moore—and he whifted Terry three times while chalking up some 20 strikeouts to win 1-0.

Shorts And Shells

Carol Freese, youthful Portland, Ore., golfer who was one of the sensations of the Chicago victory tournament, never had been on a train until she went east for that event. Chances are she won't try it again soon. . . . Wally Roettger, U. of Illinois baseball coach, argues that the majors might as well let players go through college before signing them because they don't reach their peak, anyway, until after they pass college age. Wally doubts if any major league pitcher can be a regular before he's 25—in normal times, of course. . . . Joseph Bohemial Lapchick, St. John's U. basketball coach, is handing out cigars for the arrival of his third child. . . . George Kerr, guard on Frank Leahy's Sugar Bowl grid team of 1941, recently was ordained to the priesthood.

Service Department

Navy Lt. Mel Jones, the Dodgers' former secretary who still is keeping tabs on "them bums" in the Pacific, went into Okinawa six days before the big invasion. When his plane took off for Hawaii 42 days later, it was in the middle of an air raid . . . Mel, who served through the Larry MacPhail regime, still thinks Okinawa was rather rugged. . . . Jimmy Baird, 103-pound G. I. from Oacoma, S. D., who shipped to the India-Burma theater with a mule transport unit, has become a first-line jockey at the Delhi race course. "The excitement appealed to me," Jimmy explained. "Also the opportunity of adding to the $79 a month I collect from the finance officer."

MONROE YOUTH IS NOW RECTOR

J. Murray Eby Ordained And Assigned To British Guiana

The Rev. J. Murray Eby, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Eby of Monroe, sailed last week for British Guiana, where he will serve as rector at the Wismar Vickerage on the Demerara river. He will be affiliated with the Church of England and his work will be of missionary nature and one offering unusual opportunity for a resourceful and energetic young rector.

Young Eby has throughout his youth dreamed of entering the ministry which was further stimulated when he became an altar boy at Grace Episcopal Church. He is a native of Monroe, attended Ouachita Parish High School and later graduated at Northeast Junior College. He then pursued a course at Sewanee, Tenn., and from there entered an Episcopal theological seminary in the East.

Later he entered and completed his theological studies at the Little Portion Monastery at Mount Sinai, Long Island, New York.

He was ordained to the ministry at Little Portion Chapel last May 14, in an impressive ceremony which was the first ever held in that chapel. The service comprised a Pontifical Solemn High Mass. E. S. Eby, father of the new rector, was the only member of the family from Monroe who was able to make the trip there at that time.

AT FORT ORD, CAL.

REPORTS ON WHEN WAR MAY END PURELY SPECULATION

Officials Deny Any Offer For Peace Received From Japan

WASHINGTON, July 21. —(Special To The World)—When will the war with the Japs end?

The answer to that question has a jittery Washington on edge, and the answers are a dime a dozen. You can get estimates that range from a few weeks to two years. Actually, there is every reason to believe that no one has any idea which can be substantiated by facts.

Washington, like the other capitals of the world, is filled with rumors and speculation. They apparently originated from two sources. First, the lack of any real news from the Big Three conference at Potsdam. Secondly through the failure of the Japs to put up the resistance against naval and air attacks upon Japan proper which had been anticipated.

Virtually the entire press corps in Washington has been working feverishly this week in an attempt to run down the many rumors and reports. Thus far, at least, they have failed to substantiate any of them.

Highest ranking military authorities frankly admit that any estimate of the length of the war with Japan is merely a guess. State Department officials flatly deny they have seen or even heard, other than through the press and radio, anything which would look like a bonafide offer from Japan for peace.

What is being reported from Potsdam is merely speculation. Ranking officials of all three countries represented there have been completely isolated from the press correspondents and will remain so until the conference ends unless there should be a sudden change in plans.

It is assumed that the Japanese war is high on the agenda of the conference. Nevertheless, all reports thus far concerning the future part of Russia in the Pacific war, or the possibility that Russia might bring about a Jap surrender have no basis in fact.

Considerable was made of the fact that President Harry S. Truman abandoned earlier plans to make a swing around Europe after the conference ended and planned to hurry back to the United States.

A careful check of this, however, discloses that the President himself had never definitely committed himself on the length of his stay in Europe. He had expressed some desire in advance of leaving this country to see certain places and persons. Because of this, his aides had made plans to cover any alternative which might arise while they were over there.

The fact that the President disclosed to newsmen while aboard ship that he would probably return almost immediately to the United States once the conference is over does not necessarily mean a drastic change in original plans. Likewise, it is entirely possible that he may again change his plans to remain there for awhile.

Conservative judgement would indicate that during his conversations with Secretary of State James Byrnes and other top ranking government officials aboard the Augusta, it was decided that present critical conditions would not warrant the President's absence from the country for such an extended visit. For this reason, it is entirely possible that he decided to return as soon as possible without, at that time, at least, having any announcement connected with the end of the Jap war in mind.

High military officials can reach no closer agreement on the length of the war against Japan than any local group of Monday-morning generals. Public statements by generals and admirals have differed as much as a year or more.

Naval officials generally, encouraged by the close assaults upon the Jap mainland by naval forces and the apparent lack of defenses, feel that the war could be won within a year or less. But high Army officers for the most part do not agree. They point to the campaign on Okinawa for their principal argument.

Here is how one Army spokesman outlines the situation:

"We had the biggest Navy ever assembled in the world throwing everything at the Japs there. We had overwhelming sea and air power. Every part of Okinawa was within range of the Navy guns, and they hammered at the Jap defenses day and night. So, too, did the air forces. But it took three months to dig out the eighty-odd thousand Jap soldiers there, and it had to be done by the foot soldiers and marines.

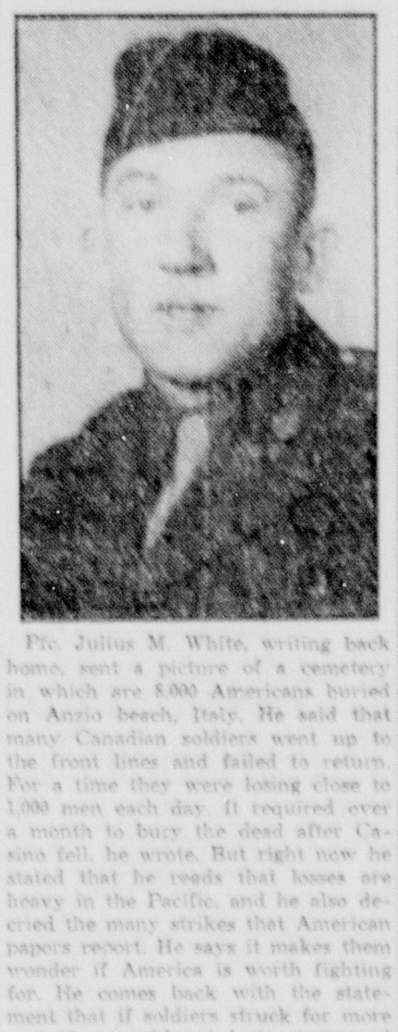
"The Japanese main islands are bigger—they're big, extending more than 1,200 miles, with a width ranging up to 200 miles. When we start moving inland, we won't have the supporting fire power of those Navy ships, for one thing. We'll own the air, but we had the air and the Navy, too, at Okinawa."

Army officers also point out that Japs have a 5,000,000-man army left—though only about 2,000,000 of their first line troops are believed to be in the home islands—the rest are in Manchuria, Korea and China. On Okinawa there were less than 100,000. And it took three months to mop them up, with superior land forces, and the greatest fire power from land, sea and air ever concentrated.

The Japs are believed to have ample supplies of guns, ammunition — they've been building up reserves for years. And the defense never has to use as much ammunition as does the attack. Furthermore, the Japs are very conserving of fire power — until it's needed.

As to the Japs giving up — "They never have. They've been brought up for generations to believe that they are destined to rule the world by force. They won't quit. We have to smash them—and then make it impossible for them to build up again to wage war—for a thousand years, if we want future generations not to have to face war with them again."

LOSSES HEAVY



Pfc. Julius M. White, writing back home, sent a picture of a cemetery in which are 8,000 Americans buried on Anzio beach, Italy. He said that many Canadian soldiers went up to the front lines and failed to return. For a time they were losing close to 1,000 men each day. It required over a month to bury the dead after Casino fell, he wrote. But right now he stated that he reads that losses are heavy in the Pacific, and he also decried the many strikes that American papers report. He says it makes them wonder if America is worth fighting for. He comes back with the statement that if soldiers struck for more pay, they could not have conquered Germany.

REVIVAL DATE CHANGED

The beginning date of The New Chapel Hill revival has been changed from July 22 to July 29. This will be Home Coming Day and many old friends are expected. Come and bring a well filled basket, states Rev. A. D. Langston, Pastor.

LOCAL DOKEYS GO TO AREA MEETING

Fallis F. Rees, Denver, Colo., was elected imperial prince. Others elected were Dr. G. H. Ater, Lubbock, Tex., imperial basha and Carl Mitchell, Cincinnati, Ohio was reelected imperial secretary.
